It is explained, too, that in New Hampshire, no person who cannot afford to pay or needed diagnostic attention or actual service, is called upon to forego this essential in health. Appeal to proper sources will bring needed assistance.

Mrs. Edmund F. Cortez of Durham, publicity director for the N. H. Field Army, points out that 30 to 50 per cent of cancer victims die needlessly every year, because they do not seek medical aid in time.

Thus, she shows, this year alone will see 55,000 of our fellow Americans dying because they did not know the basic and life saving facts about cancer, that it can be controlled if discovered in time.

U. S. Carries Fight to Russia as Congress Approves Aid; Income Tax Cut Becomes Reality Despite Truman Veto

By BILL SCHOENTGEN
WNU Staff Writer

With President Truman's signature on the $6,098,000,000 foreign aid bill, the massive, potent forces of western capitalism moved into action against Russian communism for the beginning of a titanic, long range, clash of strength.

To observers in the U.S. this interplay of forces had all the ingredients of an epic poem—the power of good striving mightily to overcome the power of evil, with the fate of a large segment of mankind depending on outcome of the struggle.

There was an epic quality, too, in the manner in which congress, seemingly impelled by a strong sense of urgency, raced the bill through for final action. The house approved it with a vote of 318 to 75 after less than 15 minutes of explanation, and the senate followed up swiftly with a voice vote.

Two days after passage of the measure President Truman meshed the gears of the global aid program by ordering the reconstruction finance corporation to advance 1.16 billion dollars at once. That action released U.S. dollars, reconstruction supplies and in some cases arms to 15 European nations, as well as Turkey, western Germany, Trieste, and China.

The overall $6,098,000,000 aid package includes 4.3 billion dollars for the European recovery program, 275 million dollars for military assistance to Greece and Turkey, 463 million for China and 2 million dollars for Trieste. All of it is aimed at areas where communists are sharpening their sword of aggression.

An ill-starred movement in the house to include aid to Franco Spain in the bill was defeated before it had time to do much damage to U.S. prestige and moral stature abroad.

As the aid started to move, the situation abroad stacked up something like this:

Russia's seizure of Czechoslovakia, its new pact with Finland and pressure on Scandinavian nations, the Soviets' arbitrary action in Berlin all pointed to the fact that Moscow was trying to bring about a showdown in Europe before the European recovery plan began to work effectively.

On the other hand, the rapid passage of the foreign aid measure, the proposal to return Trieste to Italy and the stiffening of American will in Berlin seemed to indicate, that the U.S., while not forcing a showdown, was, nevertheless, willing to have it as soon as possible.

Few persons familiar with the situation thought that a showdown with Russia necessarily meant war. But it did involve acceptance of a risk of war. U.S. leaders were willing to take that risk on the theory that the likelihood of a shooting war is less now than it might be in the foreseeable future.

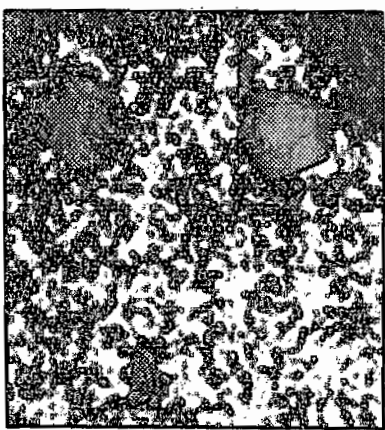

REDUCTION: Tax Measure

President Truman's veto of the income tax reduction bill was crushingly overridden by both houses of congress—311 to 88 in the house, 77 to 10 in the senate—and U.S. citizens sat back to gloat over the first major tax-cutting measure passed in nearly 20 years.

In his now characteristic "I'd rather be right than be president" role, Mr. Truman had stubbornly affixed his veto to the bill, protesting that it mainly would benefit persons with incomes of $5,000 or more, encourage further inflation and sap the nation's strength at a time of international "danger."

Examination of the new tax structure indicated that the President was right in his first contention, at least

Who's Mad?

Nobody seemed to be mad at anybody when Gov. William M. Tuck of Virginia and President Truman met at convocation exercises at William and Mary college, Williamsburg, Va., to receive honorary degrees of doctor of laws. Mr. Truman exchanged a cordial handshake with Governor Tuck, vociferous leader of the southern states' rebellion on the President's civil rights program.

—that the law would be of greater benefit to persons with high incomes than to those in lower brackets. Reason for that is that 12.6 per cent of $3,000 is considerably less than 5 per cent of a million. (Cuts in tax rates as provided by the new law range from 12.6 per cent in the lowest brackets to 5 per cent in the top level.)

Most interesting aspect of the tax cut development was the question of what motivated Mr. Truman to veto the bill. He was aware that enough members of both houses were supporting tax reduction in this election year to override his veto; hence, that his veto would be a gesture of futility that would place him on record as opposing the popular will.

Mr. Truman must have been aware, also, of the strong possibility that next year congress, safely through the elections, will boost federal income by reimposing some version of the wartime excess profit tax.

In view of these unpretty but inescapable realities, the President's veto of the tax bill simply did not fit the preconceived pattern of political action in an election year. Rather, it looked more like the deliberate driving of another nail in his political coffin.

In his veto message, Mr. Truman contended that increased defense and foreign aid measures might make it necessary for congress to raise taxes next year.

"In the case of the income tax," he said, "nearly 40 per cent of the reduction would go to individuals with net incomes in excess of $5,000, who constitute less than 5 per cent of all taxpayers."

Also, the President continued, while national income is high every effort should be made to reduce the size of the 253-billion-dollar public debt.

He was, beyond doubt, sincere in his objections, but they fell on deaf ears in congress.

MODERN MOTORCADE

Cars on Road Hit Historic Figure

Number of passenger cars on the road in the U.S. today is at an all-time high, according to an article in the April edition of "Business Comment," bulletin of Northern Trust company.

This is true despite the fact that no passenger cars were manufactured for private use during the war, that an estimated average of 1.2 million passenger cars were scrapped or put into storage yearly during the same period, and that

FARM SUPPORT: By Taft

Stumping Nebraska in preparation for the state's April 13 presidential primary election in which he was pitted against six other GOP White House aspirants, Sen. Robert Taft (Rep., Ohio) went gunning for rural votes by resurrecting a few farm promises.

In what was termed a major farm policy address at Grand Island, Taft went on record as favoring larger government payments for the purpose of building and reconstructing the soil—an item of considerable influence with Nebraska farmers.

Also, he developed his general farm policy along these lines:

1 He agreed in general with the theory of government support of farm prices.

2 Asserted that the farm cooperative system should be "sufficiently developed so no one can take advantage of the individual farmer."

3 Called for "steady expansion of rural electrification to every farm," even though federal subsidies might be required in some remote areas.

4 Asked for a solution of farm problems without production controls "except perhaps in the most extraordinary emergencies."

5 Said that the parity formula must be revised to recognize "fundamental changes since 1913" before determining exact methods by which the government should support farm prices.

APOLOGIA: From Russia

Even as Russia officially expressed regret over the "unfortunate" British-Soviet plane crash over Berlin which cost 15 lives, plain people all over the world began to see more clearly how, although no nation is seeking war now, a war could start accidentally.

A pilot of a Russian fighter plane had buzzed a British plane, carrying 14 passengers, as it was landing in Berlin.

Tension in Berlin eased somewhat when British officials accepted the Russian apology and canceled plans to assign fighter plane escorts to all air transports coming into Berlin.

The official British account of the crash quoted eyewitnesses as saying that the Russian fighter pilot was "frolicking" when he hit the big plane.

While the fighter pilot undoubtedly had not been ordered to harass the British plane, it was equally apparent that he and his cohorts had not been forbidden to do so.

Aside from the number of lives lost, the disturbing part of the incident is that it was, in a manner of speaking, an aggressive action, an overt act of deliberate provocation. And it is just such incidents as that that world leaders fear might one day touch off the conflagration.

NUMBER ONE

Public Friend

Carl C. Countryman again wants to be President of the United States. With true political ebullience he has dubbed himself "American Public Friend Number One" and adopted a monolithic slogan: "Countryman for his countrymen; his countrymen for Countryman."

That this near-palindromic tongue-twister is intended to strike sparks of devotion from the flinty hearts of American voters is apparent in Countryman's frank statement that:

"My campaign must be for overwhelming publicity and an appeal to the imagination of the American people. I have a lot of evidence that my slogan, 'Countryman for his countrymen; his countrymen for Countryman,' is doing the trick."

Countryman is not a myth. He is not a hoax himself, nor is he trying to perpetrate a hoax through his presidency campaign. He is just a man, getting along in years now, who is serving the sincere belief that he could do better in the White House than the political figureheads in vogue.

He is, in the parlance of the cynics and light-of-tongues, a "character," but an honest character.

Countryman opposes communism: "I want no part nor dealings with the Communist usurpers, who represent but a small fragment of the great Russian people."

Countryman advocates a hard-fisted attitude toward Russia: "It was a mistake amounting to an international crime to ever recognize the regime. I was against it as a base betrayal of the cause of representative government and the cause of a free people."

Countryman opposes the military draft: "The draft is a subterfuge of incompetence. I favor making universal military training so attractive that it will be universal or approximately so."

Countryman's name will appear on no primary election ballots: "The gain inherent in such a course will not justify the necessary expenditure of time and money."

Countryman likes John Bricker of Ohio: "If I cannot get the nomination, I am all for Bricker. I should like to have the ticket Countryman and Bricker but if not, then Bricker and Countryman."

There is a truism which holds that universally present in the heart of every man is the belief that he could play Hamlet and run a newspaper. Countryman brings that deeply felt human motivation to the height of true nobility. For in his heart is the crowning belief that he also could be a good president.

Seek Uranium

Uranium—that most precious of all metals since advent of the atomic age—is being sought in Colorado now.

Department of the interior has set aside about 40 square miles of public land in the southwestern part of the state for exclusive use of the atomic energy commission, which will conduct an exhaustive investigation there for deposits of uranium, source of atomic energy.

The exploratory drilling will be done in Colorado next summer for the atomic energy commission by the U.S. geological survey.

Lands found to contain no uranium, according to the commission's announcement, will not be kept under control. They will be released from the withdrawal order and again will be open for entry.

The commission disclosed that "it is expected" that lands found to contain uranium "will become available for development and mining by private interests."

NEW START: China's Chiang

Hopelessly lost in the political and economic confusion of China, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, leader of the republic in one capacity or another since 1927, was casting about for a new role in the tragedy of the Far East.

Afflicted externally by Communist armies and internally by the venality of black marketeers and corrupt government officials, Chiang has been in the position of a man attempting to build a house on a pile of soggy refuse.

Now, however, there was a report out that Chiang had decided to quit the presidency of China. But there also were indications that, far from going into retirement, he would remain as Kuomintang strong man by becoming premier.

A spokesman for the Kuomintang, China's governing party, said that the generalissimo was determined to free himself from the presidency in order to lead a "holy war" against the increasingly powerful Chinese communists.

China's new national assembly, empowered to elect the country's first constitutional president and vice-president, had regarded Chiang as a virtually unanimous choice for the presidency which he has held since 1943.

According to latest reports, Chiang was urging that Dr. Hu Shih be elected president. Former ambassador to Washington, Hu Shih now is president of Peking university.

PALESTINE: Trusteeship

Studiously ignoring the groups and individuals who threw up their hands in horror when the U. S. reversed its position on partition of Palestine, this nation went right ahead with its avowed plan for a United Nations trusteeship of the Holy Land.

Disclosing some of the details of that plan, Warren R. Austin, American delegate to the U.N., told security council members that the United States favors sending foreign troops to Palestine to keep order, if and when that becomes necessary, under the trusteeship formula.

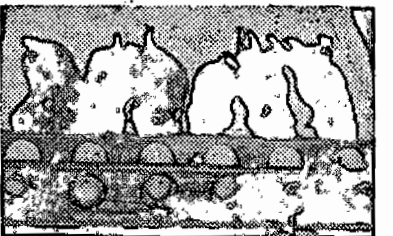

Unmistakably implied, although not stated outright, was U. S. willingness to send American troops to the Holy Land, provided other nations would join the parade also. Another provision was that the number of nations supplying troops be specifically limited.

Actually, there was little optimism that the fratricidal strife in Palestine or the causes producing it could be effaced by the expedient of imposing a U.N. trusteeship.

It is hoped that the convent for the Sisters of St. Mary will be finished by May 1st.

The body of Charles Edgerly, who died January 10th in Exeter, and was placed in the receiving tomb there, was brought here Sunday for burial in the family lot in Riverside cemetery. Mr. Edgerly was for many years a resident of this town.

Stanton Lawrence, his son Fred and his mother, Mrs. Marion Lawrence of Ashburnham, Mass., were in town Monday calling on friends.

Rev. and Mrs. Lewis Elms have returned to the summer camp at Ocean Park, Maine, after spending the winter in town.

Don't forget the benefit card party for the Rev. Hector A. Benoit court, CDA, scheduled for Wednesday evening, April 28, at 8 p. m. in St. Mary's school hall.

John Carpenter has some beautiful geraniums in his hot house; just the thing for Memorial Day. He also has some fine strong tomato plants.

Mary DeAngelis and Ann De Giamco of Allston, Mass., visited Marjorie Audette over the week end and were dinner guests of Norma Neal Sunday. Other guests at Norma's dinner were Madeline Ramsdell, Mary Ryan, and Rita Baillargeon. After dinner the happy party went to Dover, where they partook of a turkey supper. They then decided to go to the movies but there was such a crowd there wasn't any room for them so they motored to Durham and attended the movies there.

The children of St. Mary's school had a holiday last Friday. It was the feast of St. Joseph.

The supper at the Community church vestry last Thursday evening was well attended. It was one of the best suppers ever served by the Guild.

The papers say that blueberries are to be scarce this summer. We hope they are wrong.

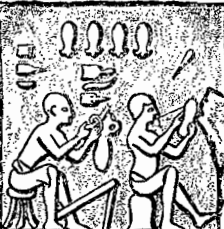

The Mayflowers are scarce this spring too, but not the juniper bushes. At least my fried Edith and myself found plenty Sunday as well as blackberry and barberry bushes, but no Mayflowers.

The children and dogs are enjoying a vacation this week especially the dogs. We must remember that "Every dog has his day and every cat their night."

Mrs. Belle Edgerly is expected home next month. We hope it will be warmer than this so she can work in her garden.

One of my friends said they heard there was to be another snow storm.

Mrs. Ethel Cook of Marblehead, Mass., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. John G. Rodrigues of Exeter street for a few days.

THE PRESENCE

THE CONSTANT presence of our Lord in the daily life of His follower is a fact of the utmost importance. In due time it becomes the dominant factor in all that he says and does.

The presence of the Lord is an encouragement and a deterrent, an inspiration and a controlling influence. It encourages one to shun everything that is sordid and impure, all that proceeds from the sinful flesh. It is a warning to guard one's tongue, to avoid profanity, levity and all unseemly conversation.

His presence is a source of strength and power. It makes it easier to say NO to that which is wrong; less difficult to say YES to that which the love of God requires. It supports a person in every sincere effort to put aside the unlovely: unkindness, impatience, selfishness, and envy. It sustains in trials, comforts in sorrows, helps to untangle the perplexities of life, give confidence and calm in the hour of crisis.

His presence is not something remotely possible, something rarely attained. A trusting heart and a willing spirit insure His presence. Allowed to speak through His Word, He does not long delay His reassuring "Lo, I am with you always." The soul that humbly entreats Him, "Abide with us," quickly discovers that He responds by entering in. In such a life the Presence is a reality.

Mayor Tells Kiwanians Merchants and Owners Had Long Sleigh Ride

In an address to the Kiwanis Club last Thursday night, Mayor Thomas Burbank laid the perplexing problem of city finances squarely at the doors of the merchants and city central property owners. His talk on city affairs was listened to eagerly, if not with relish by those present.

The mayor cited how last year, by calling in the state to assess city central property, the city picked up a million and a quarter in added assessable property. Mayor Burbank said, "The income from a million at $35 per thousand is thirty-five thousand a year and over a period of six years this amounts to a sum of $220,000."

"If the city had had this income which rightfully belonged to it during the past six years, the expenses which now face the city would not seem so frightening."

The mayor added, "You and I who live in private homes have for at least six years paid more than our fair share of the city expense, while most of our merchants and owners of property located in the heart of the city paid much less than their proportionate share."

Mayor Burbank previously had pointed out that for the sum of $600, the mayor was the city's administrative executive answering all the complaints and generally trying to see that things went along smoothly. Calling various committees of which he is chairman to hold meetings and preparing matters for council meetings, were just a few of his many duties said Mayor Burbank.

"Mind you," the mayor added, "I am not kicking. I knew what I was getting into."

"I just want to cite some of the fallacies of the city government in Rochester. You pay the mayor $600, which is $88 less than the city treasurer, who does nothing except to sign his name to blank checks. Yet the mayor is the executive of a business (the city of Rochester) which spends $700,000 a year."

"The assessors who make it possible to bring in enough money to pay these expenses receive $1000 a year; yet they weren't granted the latest 'cost of living increase.' (Neither was the mayor—presumably because none of them earned it.)"

"Actually, of course, the only power the mayor has is to appoint two janitors at city hall. Everything else he does is at the behest of the council."

"On the school board of which he is a member, he has no vote except in case of a tie. Other than this, he has no voice in school affairs."

Mayor Burbank stated that his theory of city government was no different than that of private business. "First," he said, "we must take care of labor. Give them good wages, so that they feel contented and secure. After taking care of this primary obligation, it is up to the executives of a company or city to use their ingenuity to make both ends meet."

The mayor cited here, the cost of living raises given city employees, and the recent raise in water rates. He spoke of the added income from parking meters which is helping to offset rising costs in the police department and he mentioned other possibilities for added sources of city income such as licensing pin ball machines, increasing taxi, pool, and other licenses.

Mayor Burbank said that although many things must be bought and paid for this year, he favored the installation of flood lights at the Spaulding athletic field for two reasons. First, because they would give those who work in shops an opportunity to see games; and secondly, because they would be a self liquidating project. "Rochester spends the least of any city for amusement and the installation of a self paying project is certainly a worthy program," the mayor said.

In his talk the mayor referred to a need for an auxiliary water supply for the city and spoke of a sewage disposal plant which sooner or later will have to be installed. The auxiliary water supply may cost as much as three quarters of a million dollars and a sewage disposal plant, three years ago was quoted at $230,000. "Where's this money going to come from?" the mayor asked the Kiwanis members. "It fills me with awe and if you give serious pause to think about the need for these two things in the next five years, your dreams won't be pleasant either," the mayor concluded.

MOOSE BALL COMING IN TWO WEEKS

Chairman Harry Notkin of the Rochester Lodge of Moose Fifth Annual May Ball told the Observer yesterday that the lodge was fortunate to obtain Billy Stone's orchestra for their ball which will be held this year Friday, May 7th, in the City Opera House.

Billy Stone has one of the leading bands playing engagements in Boston night clubs and the Moose were able to tie him to a contract due to the fact that it was an in-between time for the dance orchestra impressario.

Tickets for the ball are $1.25 and may be obtained at either Blanchett's Furniture Store or at the Canteen.

MAYOR GETS REQUEST FOR PAIR OF SHOES FROM GERMANY

Koblenz, Rhein, Kurfurstenstr. 79 French Zone in Germany 30th of March 48.

To the mayor of Rochester.

Dear Sir,

Will you please excuse, that I, a German mother, address to you with a personal request.

This letter is not easy to write for me, because I know better times and I only can do so, being mother with all my heart, and you may believe, that German mothers are not different of all the other mothers in the world:

In the love to their children!

And there is still another reason, that allows me, I think, to come to you with my petition:

Long time ago, around 1895, my father—he was physician—stayed there for some years. As doctor he has done good for ill people in your home, and I beg you heartliest, to think of this, when you will hear now of my troubles:

I have a son of 22 years. He is still prisoner of war in Russia, but on his way home, with a transport of ill men.

As we lost in the end of the war our home, I also lost all the clothing of this boy, and you may believe, that it was very heavy for me to get the most important things, he needs. Often I could not sleep in the night, thinking of this, and I did not know, what I shall begin.

This boy was 17 years old, a great child, when he had to go in the war. You may believe, that I am happy to see again my child after 5 years! Now I have forgotten that we lost during the war our home and house with all, we loved in it, I don't see anymore the disturbed houses around me, which made me melancholy till now, I feel happiness in my heart, sunshine everywhere, I only have pains, because I did not get SHOES and STOCKINGS till now! My son will go to the university in another town, but without shoes he must stay at home. You are my last hope, and I beg you heartliest, to help me. The size of shoes I give you in the paper, that they will be suitable for him!

This night, thinking of my shoe-troubles, the idea came to me:

ROCHESTER NEWS ITEMS

Large Number of Taxpayers Expected to Attend Public Hearing on Record Budget

The record budget of $707,510, which was accepted by the city council at their adjourned meeting on April 13th, will be presented to the public at a public hearing at the police court rooms on Friday night, April 23rd.

The budget called for $698,371 at the adjourned council meeting but several items were added to make up the record total. The items included an increase of pay for call firemen of the fire department; $1,538.60 for 1000 feet of hose for the fire departments; at the request of the Elks lodge, $100 was appropriated for the Elks' observance of Flag day, June 13; making a total of $707,510, less the anticipated income of $112,941.00, or the amount to be raised by taxation $594,571.

This year's budget is an increase of over $100,000 over last year's budget and it is hoped that a large number of taxpayers will attend the public hearing to hear the budget explained.

Quite a number of people will talk about the high budget on the street corners, but very few will probably attend the public hearing and voice their opinions.

SPAULDING AGAIN HEADS N. H. SOCIETY

Former Gov. Huntley N. Spaulding of Rochester was re-elected president of the New Hampshire Historical society at its annual meeting today at the society's library building in Concord. Elmer Munson Hunt of Salisbury was re-elected director.

The society celebrated the 125th anniversary of its founding in 1823 and the 325th anniversary of the settlement at Little Harbor by David Thompson.

The society exhibited for the first time in New Hampshire the famous Thompson indenture, recently received from the Mass. Historical society. This document, now framed in sealed double glass with curtain to keep out the light, was the agreement signed by three merchants of Plymouth, England in 1622, to finance the colonists who arrived at Portsmouth the next year in the ship Jonathan. The indenture was originally owned by Gov. Robert C. Winthrop of Massachusetts. Stewart Mitchell, director of the Massachusetts society, was a guest speaker at the ceremonies, as were representatives of other New England historical societies.

ROCHESTER MAN WHO STABS SELF IS RECOVERING

Shortly after 1 A. M. Friday morning, Mrs. Wilbur Elwell phoned police headquarters to report that her husband was in terrible pain.

City Marshal Thomas K. Redden and Patrolman Willis Hayes went to the Elwell home where they found Mr. Elwell had stabbed himself. They removed the man to the Frisbie Memorial hospital in the police ambulance. Later hospital authorities stated that the wound was not serious and he was released early Friday morning.

Police are continuing their investigation of the case.

OLD LANDMARK MAKES WAY FOR FILLING STATION

One of the oldest landmarks in Rochester, the house located on the corner of Wakefield and Union streets, was moved to Orchard street during the past week. The house was built in 1800, and is 145 years old.

The house was purchased by real estate dealer Howell F. Preston recently from Richard and Albert Hervey, who purchased the property some time ago. A new filling station will be erected on the site by the Hervey Brothers as soon as the land has been cleared.

The back section of the house was moved to the Shoreville section of East Rochester where it will be made into a tenement house. The main section will also be made into a tenement on Orchard street.

The moving of the house was at a snail's pace because of the utility wires which span Wakefield street.

FEDERAL GOV'T AID HELPS N. H. SCHOOL LUNCH PROGRAMS

The school lunch programs in the state of New Hampshire have received federal allocations of more than one million pounds of food and nearly $200,000 so far this fiscal year, J. J. Dittick, New York City, in charge of food distribution programs for the U. S. Department of Agriculture, reported today.

The number of New Hampshire school children taking part in school lunch programs has now passed the 21,000 mark, Mr. Dittick said. In December, 21,512 children participated in school lunch projects—1,173 more than took part in December of 1946.

Federal funds allocated to New Hampshire of operation of the school lunch program total $190,562 for this school year. Federal school lunch funds are apportioned among the various states according to the number of children of school age and the per capita income of the state. Federal funds accepted by the state must be matched by funds from local sources.

Part of the federal funds is used by USDA to make large-scale purchases of foods to help round out meals served. Under this provision

New Hampshire schools have received so far this year 106,433 lbs. of canned whole tomatoes, 55,200 lbs. of tomato juice, 27,000 lbs. of dry milk, 18,750 lbs. of processed cheese, 29,362 lbs. of peanut butter and 17,508 gallons of concentrated orange juice.

Other foods have been provided from stocks which USDA purchased in price support operations. New Hampshire schools received 453,000 lbs. of potatoes, 82,200 lbs. of sweet potatoes, 34,122 lbs. of dried eggs and 163,180 lbs. of dried apples, peaches, prunes, raisins and figs.

Mr. Dittick explained that these federally-contributed food supplies represent only a small part of the total amounts used. Local sponsors buy the bulk of the school lunch foods in local markets, helping to expand normal trade channels for the marketing of foods.

Navajos Own Valuable Treasure

IT NOW LOOKS AS IF the poverty-stricken Navajo Indians, trying to scratch a precarious living from the wastelands of Arizona and New Mexico, may own one of the most priceless pieces of property in the U. S.

For some time our chief worry in production of atomic energy was the fact that all uranium deposits lay outside the United States. However, it now appears that the Navajos have been tending their pitiful flocks above a hidden atomic treasure. For, upon the Navajo reservation in the upper corner of Arizona and New Mexico, the Vanadium Corporation of America has been quietly extracting uranium.

Further details regarding this operation must remain a military secret. One amazing fact can be revealed. So far, the Navajos haven't received one penny for the uranium taken from their land. Instead, the profits have been raked in by the Vanadium corporation.

The price which the atomic energy commission is paying the Vanadium corporation for uranium also is secret, but a member of the joint congressional committee on atomic energy predicted that the metal may become almost as precious as diamonds. Since the richest deposits are all outside the United States and could be cut off in case of war, this domestic supply becomes all the more valuable.

But the Navajos, sitting on one of nature's jackpots, so far haven't been able to collect a cent.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

GOP Victory Will End Debacle

IT IS A FOREGONE CONCLUSION that the Democratic candidate will be defeated next November. It is even possible that President Truman will be rejected by his own party, but, in any case, THE REPUBLICAN NOMINEE WILL BE THE NEXT PRESIDENT.

That being the fact, and it is a fact which awaits mere confirmation, not decision, all Republican aspirants may safely repudiate all that Roosevelt promised in his conferences with Stalin and all that Mr. Truman promised after he took office. Mr. Truman lacked the knowledge, experience and presence of mind to decide immediately that Roosevelt had betrayed the United States. Therefore he began his presidency by carrying out the undertakings that Roosevelt had assumed.

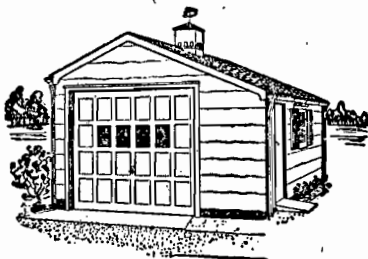

It took him a year to admit to himself that this was a course harmful and unprofitable to the United States, and somewhat longer to reverse it. This he has finally done in effect but, of course, without saying in so many words that Roosevelt had let Stalin make a fool of him or that Roosevelt deliberately double-crossed the civilized nations.

It is too bad that we do not maintain an array of garters, cordons and rosettes with which to assuage the sorrow of ultimate failure and dismissal when men make terrible mistakes in high office. Gen. George Marshall should have one with diamonds on it—the order of the one-way neck, first-class. He remained a cadet all his life. Even when he had five stars on each shoulder, he was always nodding "yes." After Roosevelt was gone he began to discover facts about Stalin and his regime that all honest Americans who concerned themselves at all about politics had known all along. General Marshall must be too intelligent not to have known when Roosevelt showed him the first fatal signs of favoritism that this was the character of the Russian ruler. Roosevelt himself knew it but he simply could not think honestly.

Easily Built Garage with Extra Storage Space

IF you know the difference between a hammer and a saw, you shouldn't have any difficulty with this 13 ft. x 20 ft. garage. Even if you don't want to do all the building yourself, the pattern method of construction provides all the information needed to buy your own materials and to act as your own contractor.

With the purchase list of materials you can shop around for the 2x4s and other lumber as easily as shopping for groceries. Then by following the step by step directions and assembly illustrations you can do all or part of the work yourself.

As the floor plan indicates, there is ample space for even the longest car. Best of all this garage provides a separate storage space for garden tools. Entry to this room is from the outside. Here the lawn mower, rakes, roller and other garden tools, as well as a bicycle or two, can be stored without cluttering up the garage.

Along one wall, directly below two casement windows, there is room for a six foot workbench. Toward the rear is a closet that can be used for any number of good ideas. It's large enough for a deep freeze unit or for a reserve canned goods supply; screens or storm sash, paints, darkroom or endless other uses.

Building the garage yourself can be lots of fun. You'll not only save a lot of money but you'll be surprised to see what a professional looking job you can turn out. Building from a pattern eliminates all guesswork. The pattern tells you what to buy and where to use each piece. Step by step directions are easy to follow. Full Size Patterns simplify making angle cuts on rafters and gable studs. All construction is laid out so that no special tools are needed. Directions for building the cupola are included.

Directions and assembly illustrations are also provided for building a breezeway connecting the garage to your house.

THE GREAT MAN MARCHES IN EFFIGY... John L. He was there only in effigy as a member of the Hamarville delegation. John Mitchell, incidentally, was the UMW president who first won the eight-hour day for miners.

THROWING NO STONES... This is a transparent example of how attractive living in a farm home can be. The Pine Manor farm home of Milo Miller near Goshen, Ind., has five large picture windows, including this one in the utility room which overlooks the farm yard. Glass is of two-pane construction enclosing dehydrated air space for insulation, eliminating drafts and frosting of window in winter.

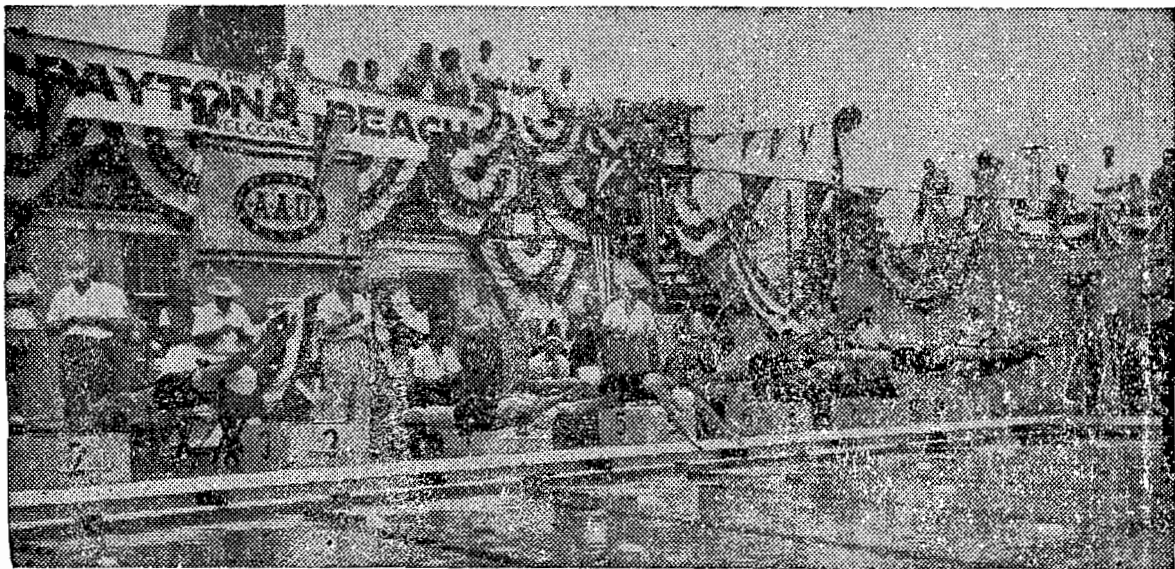

RETURN OF A CARRIER... Nicest thing about pictures of warships is that they invariably have interesting scenic backgrounds. Here, the lower New York skyline serves as a backdrop for the aircraft carrier Leyte as she passes the Brooklyn bridge. The Leyte was docked at Brooklyn navy yard for overhauling after returning from a tour of duty in the Mediterranean.

TEXAS CITY RISES FROM WRECKAGE... A year after the atom-like blasts of an exploding nitrate-laden freighter virtually wiped out the entire community, Texas City is rising from the ashes of its destruction like the legendary phoenix. A year ago storage tanks were sending forth sky-high flames (inset) hours after the first blasts raced through the city. Today a new city is being built. Photo shows part of a new housing project, one of many of this type, now under construction. The two-story buildings, each housing two families, will accommodate some of the hundreds of homeless residents who have been living in trailers.

Apparently each move they make brings them a step closer to civilization. In contrast to their former habit, all now wear clothes. Kwajalein is to be only a temporary home-for these Pacific nomads until a permanent one can be found.

Ann Curtis of San Francisco (in lane six) won this particular heat, but Marie Corridon of New York flashed to a new women's AAU indoor record of 59.9 seconds to win the final heat. Her time was only a half-second short of the world's record.

Holy Rosary High School

by Glo and Vic

To start out the facts of the past week, there is the arrival of the Senior class pictures, which were taken by Vantine's Studio. There is also the group pictures of different activities in the school. Everyone was glad to receive them, as they are nice souvenirs. The school was a fury of exchange. They really were made to perfection, and all were fully satisfied with them.

The Glee Club put on the finishing touches and last practice last Monday on the new Mass they were learning. It was sung Wednesday morning for the Pastor's Feast. Reverend J. Cormier celebrated his feast on Tuesday morning, where the Holy Rosary Glee Club opened the program with a song learned specially for him, but the recital and dance by the First Grade girls, "stole the show."

Report cards were given out Wednesday. There was a decided improvement in them. I guess everyone works a little bit harder towards the end of the year to make up for a few slow months previously gone by.

Rev. Maurice A. Halde was presented a small token of gratitude for all he has done for us, last Thursday, from the pupils of the high school. This was for his birthday which is today, April 21, but because of the week off, we celebrated it early. This took place at an informal gathering in the Student's Club.

The Seniors are planning a Senior Reception for about the first of June. They are keeping the plans sort of secret, so further news will come out later. They are also making plans for their class trip, which we are quite sure will be to New York and Washington. The lucky kids.

The Sophomores are not editing the school paper, but they certainly are giving a helping hand. The paper this month is to be mostly Literary. To explain this, a short story written by one of the pupils is to be fully published in it. It is "Rimless," written by Romeo Larochele. It is about basketball sport in a high school, so look for it. We are in hopes of having the paper out for Sunday. It is sold after all the masses for only fifteen cents, so won't you please buy one copy at least. What say??

All of the Juniors of the school have written a short story, which is being read aloud in school by Florence Gagne. So far, we are pleased to say, they are mighty interesting.

The Banquet held Friday in honor of the Basketball teams was a huge success. Most of the teams were scared, but, proud. It was a wonderful experience for all.

SPECIAL
Today is also the birthday and feast day of Sister Mary Alda. Since we are not in school to congratulate her, we are taking this occasion to wish her in the name of the school a "Very Happy Birthday."

We hope that you are all enjoying your vacation, though we know that you are all very anxious to be back in school!!!

Following Dr. Taylor's address, interest groups will discuss the work of the Sunday School in three age divisions. "Let the Children Come," a set of 46 slides, will demonstrate visual methods in leadership training. The Conference will close at 9:30 after a worship service featuring the religious film, "No Greater Power," which pictures the story of Zaccheus and Jesus.

A Fellowship Supper will be served at six p. m. by the Women's Society of Christian Service, of which Mrs. Harold Stevens is president.

Although the majority of participating churches will be Methodist it is expected that nearby churches of other denominations also will be represented. Any minister or worker interested in the conference will be welcome at either afternoon or evening sessions, or both, while supper reservations may be made by calling the Rev. Mr. Cook.

Civil Service Commission Promotes 'Feather Bedding'

IN the Taft-Hartley labor law an effort was made to outlaw "feather bedding" as a labor practice in private industry. The people generally approved of that provision. The civil service commission encourages "feather bedding" in the federal government service.

In private business the superintendent or foreman who can get a job done with a minimum number of employees is considered highly efficient and is paid for that kind of efficiency. That is not true in the federal government. There, the boss, whether he be a bureau chief, the head of a division in a bureau, or a small "straw" boss, is paid in accordance with the number of people he employs. The more people on his payroll the more money for the boss.

The boss of whatever grade, up to those being paid $9,975 a year—that is the top civil service family—can get an increase in wages, by the simple expedient of putting more people on his payroll. He may not, probably does not, need more help to do the job, but he is assured of a raise when he gives more of the faithful government jobs. He employs "feather bedders" under rules of the civil service commission.

That silly rule is responsible for the employment of many thousands of unneeded people; many thousands of additional bureaucrats who are but "feather bedders" serving no purpose other than that of making possible the drawing of a higher salary by their boss.

Congress has taken no action on the "feather bedding" that is a direct cost to the American taxpayer. Congress has, at least, made an effort to stop Petrillo and his musicians' union from forcing payment of wages to unneeded musicians; has attempted to save theater owners and other operators of amusement places unnecessary expenditures, but congress has made no effort to curb "feather bedding" activities of the civil service commission. The over-burdened taxpayer must dig into his pockets to pay the wages of many thousands of unneeded federal government employees and the increase in salaries of many small bosses the additional employees make possible, under that silly civil service commission ruling.

The American people are willing to pay directors of federal employees for any increase in efficiency. Employing more people than are needed to do a job is not what the American people would term efficiency.

Incidentally, one of the three members of the civil service commission is Madame Perkins, former secretary of labor. When she quit her cabinet post she did not separate herself from the government payroll. On the present job she draws a salary of $10,000 a year.

Another Culprit

The sections where the golden oranges grow, Southern California, Florida, Arizona and South Texas, paid heavy tribute to Jack Frost during the past winter. The smudge pots burned on many a night when the thermometer dropped below the freezing point. Orange growers burned up more than four million dollars' worth of crude oil and with it a heavy labor cost for firing. With such expense items the profits of many an orange grower disappeared for a year. The burning oil did not save all the crop. It is estimated that 15 per cent of the nation's citrus fruits were ruined. It means a shortage in our vitamin "A" products for the next 12 months. It means a heavy dip into the expected profits of the growers unless they can sell what they saved from the ravages of Old Jack Frost at a higher price. We can condemn that hoary marauder for at least one higher mark in our living cost. We must have our vitamin "A."

The American people might not, probably would not, object to a continuation of wartime taxes if the surplus were all used to reduce the national debt. They do object to putting, year after year, one third or more of their earnings in a pot into which congress dips to finance every plan some member of congress believes will buy a few votes. The rank and file of Americans are asking for government frugality. Economy is a popular word, but politicians do not recognize it.

The Democratic ticket will be Truman and ——. The Republican ticket will be — and ——. The national conventions will fill in the blanks. The second act will be put on by the spellbinders, and the third act by the people at the ballot boxes. The side show will be Wallace and Taylor.

During and since the war this country developed more Chamberlains than Churchills.

That nation will win that gets there first with the "meekest" plan.

AIR FORCE OFFERS FLIGHT TRAINING TO VETERANS

Another class of Aviation Cadets in the reactivated Aviation Cadet Program which is open to veterans will start July 1, according to 1st Sgt. Frank M. DeRosa.

Qualified veterans from any branch of the Armed Services who can meet the United States Air Force's high requirements can apply now for Aviation Cadet training, Sgt. DeRosa said.

The applicant must be 20 to 26½ years of age and unmarried, with two or more years of college, or be able to pass an equivalent education examination. Candidates also must have sound physiques and excellent health.

Aviation Cadet training takes 12 months and upon its completion graduates are commissioned as 2nd lieutenants in the Air Force Reserve and placed on active duty with the United States Air Force. They may, if they wish to make the Air Force a career, apply for a Regular Air Force commission.

An Aviation Cadet is paid $75 a month, plus food, clothing, housing and medical and dental care. A $250 clothing allowance is given upon graduation. As a second lieutenant on flying pay, he receives $336 a month as a single officer and $372 a month if married.

Among other opportunities offered to veterans in the U. S. Air Force, Sgt. DeRosa said, is chance to enlist in a grade up to technical sergeant, depending upon the veteran's amount of skill and specialties. This is open to former officers and enlisted men. Former officers who qualify may enlist in grades up to master sergeant.

The third opportunity offered to veterans by the U. S. Air Force is its new Aviation Career Plan. Under this plan, former servicemen who are high school graduates can select the specialized training they want, before they sign the enlistment papers. They are assured of this training.

Men who did not complete high school are eligible for this career plan, Sgt. DeRosa said, if they can document the equivalent education. Some 40 technical and specialist courses are open to veterans under this plan.

MOTOR VEHICLE INSPECTION DURING MAY

Motor Vehicle Commissioner Frederick N. Clarke today ordered inspection for all motor vehicles during the month of May.

In making this announcement the Commissioner urged motorists not to delay until the latter part of the month but to contact inspection stations as early as possible. He stated that by cooperating in this matter motorists will not be embarrassed at the end of this month by finding themselves without the necessary sticker.

The commissioner stated that all the motor vehicle inspection stations are ready and willing to cooperate to the best of their ability on inspection but the public must also cooperate in order to bring about the desired results.

He emphasized that inspections are of extreme importance and everybody should have their vehicles inspected immediately after May 1st.

BIG CROWD SEES KIWANIS REVUE

"The Kiwanis Revue of 1948", written and directed by Armand R. LaPointe, played to a near capacity house at the Spaulding high auditorium last Monday night in its return engagement.

The same acts which were such a big hit the week before, were featured. Once again Annette Chouinard sang popular songs which pleased the audience. "The Taperettes," four young girls from Somersworth, again were a big hit with the crowd with their novelty dancing.

End men Murray Novins, Albert Ingalls, Dr. Roy and Richard Bradt kept the audience in stitches.

Armand LaPointe and Ralph Osterman gave their short skits which were packed with laughs. Roland McGregor, soloist with the Rochester City Four, gave another fine performance.

Other top acts which also entertained the audience were: Mope and Dope, the two Ethiopian comedians, singing by John Cotton and the Kiwanis choir of 50 voices, the orchestra directed by Dr. Raymond Perreault, Richard Bradt and his marimba.

HOOF DUST

Records are expected to fall right and left at Saratoga Springs April 20-21, when Auctioneer Murray D. Kay wields his gavel over the fifth annual Saratoga spring harness horse sale.

New record prices for individual yearlings and total sales value are almost sure to be written into the books for the Saratoga auction. The number of horses to be disposed of already has established one new mark.

Kay will sell a total of 125 Standardbred horses—a good fifty more than last year and the greatest number in the history of the sale.

Consignments will come from farms all the way from New England to Chicago.

Mrs. Florance Lee of Denver will send the green three-year-old filly Lady Virtue, by Guy Day, while two other distant consignments will come from Arthur Berry of Fort Dodge, Ia., and Hopeworth stables of Oskaloosa, Ia.

Twenty-five yearlings, a dozen broodmares, and many fast-record performers will be among those going under the hammer. Twelve of the yearlings, including four by Pegasus Pointer, will be placed in the sale ring by F. A. Clark of Middletown, Conn.

A varied array of 12 also will be offered by O'Hanigan's Stock Farm of Voorheesville, N. Y.

There will be a social Saturday April 24th.

Joseph Shina, John Kustra, Andrew Kuczek, visited in Manchester Sunday afternoon and looked up some of their friends.

Dola, Everett and the Count motored to Plainfield and tried their luck gunning for wild boar, but they had no luck. The boys are going again to see what they can do in the near future.

Cooney, why don't you smoke cigars like Billy Mink? Then the boys will not smoke up your cigarettes like they do.

The two young men who accepted the ride from the club to go up town, got themselves a longer ride than they expected. They found themselves in Epping and while there almost bought themselves a business. The boys looked over a two story building and their plans were to be that the second story would be or tenants and the first floor or a bar and lunch room which would be on the left wing and on the right they would have a furniture store.

Who were the two girls that gave the boys a bad time Monday night? Or is it that the boys didn't buy the girls a drink that night?

The fighting spirit of the gentle Quaker, Agent Stephen Hanson, is clearly shown in letters written to Schoolmaster Smith, the Salem surveyor, when the trial of the case was pending:

Friend Smith: I was this day informed that Edward Smith is going to Salem to make another attempt to take thy deposition, and if he should, we hope thou wilt give him the same treatment thee did before drive him from thy school room: We wish thee not to give thy deposition at all, whether money is tendered thee or not, we holding ourselves responsible to thee for all damages sustained, and thee holding thyself in readiness to attend court when called for; Thee not to give thyself any uneasiness about thy loss in the school last winter by Edward attempting to take thy deposition, as the Company will make thee satisfied. We want thee on Tuesday next to attend in surveying and whatever thy engagements are, or may be, thou must not disappoint us, as it is necessary thou attend. (Signed) Stephen Hanson, Agent.

Another letter dated February 16, 1820: Friend Smith: Thee very well knows that thy presence will be necessary at Portsmouth on next Tuesday and as we have told thee that thou shouldst be paid for all thy trouble and expense while thy attention is called in any business in the action of Smith vs Chase. We believe thy feelings are such as will not require us to give thee any further notice more than to say that we shall want thee there at all events on the spot on Tuesday against Chase. We shall not delay forenoon in the Smith action against Chase. We shall not detain thee for only one week. Thou need not adjourn thy school any longer than for that time. Should thee suffer any loss by this detention we give thee voucher: That all thy loss shall be made up to thee. Therefore, death or sickness so as thou can not be brought on a bed in the stage is the only excuse for thy not coming. Arrive at Portsmouth next Tuesday at ten of the clock. We can not proceed one step towards a trial without thee. Stephen Hanson, Agent.

Call All Boys And Girls To Participate In Garden Contest

County 4-H Club Agt Roy E. Worthen urged Rockingham county boys and girls to plant gardens this spring and participate in the New Hampshire 4-H Garden program.

A 4-H garden, Mr. Worthen said, will give boys and girls a chance to learn by doing, contribute considerably to the family food supply and give then an attractive healthy after-school activity.

Mr. Worthen pointed out that food produced in home gardens will help reduce the family's cost of living; contribute to an increase in the county's total food supply, making possible larger shipments for foreign relief; and raise nutritional standards by providing more fresh and preserved foods for daily consumption.

Aim of the 4-H garden program is to encourage the production of vegetables for home use and to teach the care and management of a well-planned garden.

Any boy between the ages of 9 and 21 is eligible to participate in the garden program, Mr. Worthen said. Young gardeners between 9 and 14 years are required to care for a garden 20 by 25 feet, or 500 square feet. A garden twice that size is required for those 14 to 21. If no garden space is available, the young gardener can make arrangements to care for a portion of the family garden.

To enroll, boys and girls should contact by card, Miss Elizabeth Bourne or Mr. Roy Worthen, assistant club agent, or write to either of them at 61 Water St., Exeter, N. H.

Upon enrollment, the 4-H gardener will receive materials prepared by the University of New Hampshire garden specialists to help him in starting and caring for his garden. 4-H leaders will advise the young gardeners of improved practices in growing, harvesting and storing vegetables.

WASHINGTON DIGEST

U.S. Has Best Opportunity of Any Nation to Enforce Peace in World

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator

Once again we face the high cost of savagery—or preventing it—depending on how you put it. Billions more to run the government and the world, and to cover a stepped-up defense program. Talk of a 10 per cent increase in the budget for next year seems logical. As one cynic remarked, in the next war perhaps we ought to try to get on the losing side, and let the victors support us for a change.

Discussion of the details and cost of a selective service and universal military training program has been going on for some time. Sentiment against drafting husbands and G.I.'s seems to be crystallizing.

It would seem that G.I.'s might be fairly good material in an emergency without having to learn the general orders over again, and without having to reacquire precision in bringing the right hand smartly to the cap brim or lying down within a reasonable period before the arrival of a machine gun bullet.

As to the husbands—they aren't entirely expendable, of course—all of them. Probably the most effective thing congress could have done was to vote immediately for immediate registration for everyone. The age brackets and exemptions, after all, could be settled later. If the emergency arises, or even approaches—we can talk details. That is the kind of emergency we face, and no sacrifice would be too great to prevent it. Right now proof of our willingness to act is most important.

Contrary to the general assumption that all we need is a few push-button experts and professors of nuclear science, any war that might come from now on would require a more extensive mobilization of civilian as well as soldier than anything which has preceded it.

Meantime, there is a better chance to establish a solid and stable peace than there ever has been. The United States has a better opportunity to enforce peace than any nation ever had. We could, with comparatively small sacrifice, start a preparedness program to prevent the "imbalance" of power against us, as they say in diplomatic language.

In other words we could, without danger of actual conflict, since there is no power NOW (not tomorrow or next year, but NOW) strong enough to threaten us, establish a Pax

Americana. And with the will to peace that exists in the world today, we could use that situation, not as the Pax Romana or the Pax Britannica was used—to create enemies—but to build an effective Pax Universa.

America, in its strength could well afford to yield sovereignty to an international force. A period of tranquillity, enforced if necessary, is what the world needs; time to reflect. Rome and Britain did bring a long peace of sorts; we can establish a longer one—one long enough, perhaps, to build a permanent one.

The principle is simple—as a colleague of mine is fond of saying—"nobody tries to pick a fight with Joe Lewis."

Early statements were made to the effect that it would cost an additional 480 millions over what already has been budgeted for universal military training. We now spend 650 million dollars a year on cosmetics. And the total time used in applying them, according to my private statisticians, divided into manhours of military training, leaves a generous surplus for home-work.

I do not mean to treat lightly the world situation and the idea of a Pax Americana is not an empty one.

It is, in fact, the only kind of a peace we can be sure of until we have time to stabilize world conditions, until there is a fairer division of the bread, and the security in which to earn it and eat it; a cessation of the fear, suffering and anxiety which make men trade their heritage of freedom for the empty promise of protection at any price.

I sympathize with the people who oppose militarism in any form; but I do not accept as a valid syllogism: Militarism is bad; military training in America is militarism; therefore, military training in America is bad. Military training in Germany (the classic example) was the result of militarism, not its cause. Military training in America is no more related to German militarism than a hot dog is brother to a Dachshund.

Value of the Little Fish

The little ones didn't get away! That is what Secretary of the Interior Julius A. Krug is explaining as he spreads the mesh of one of the 90-foot nets used by commercial fishermen of the New England coast.

"Fifteen million baby haddock that didn't get away," says Krug, who as interior secretary is likewise responsible for keeping a government eye on America's fish and wildlife, "would have been worth a million and a half dollars to New England's fishermen from March to mid-October of last year. They were caught in ordinary nets, killed and discarded."

Baukhage interviews Interior Secretary Julius A. Krug aboard the floating fish laboratory "Albatross III" in Boston harbor.

If the little haddock had managed to get away, they probably would have grown up, been caught this year and sold by the same fishermen for a million and a half dollars.

This was one of the things I learned aboard the Albatross III, only floating laboratory possessed by the United States, which goes into service this spring. She started out as a regular commercial trawler, was drafted, transformed into a member of the coast guard's Atlantic patrol, discharged and now is equipped to do exactly the work commercial fishermen do, plus a lot more (by her crew of scientists) which will help the fishermen do better.

One of the tasks of the fish experts is to see if anything can be figured out which will save the wastage created by catching the fish too young and thus preventing them from growing up to be caught and sold another year.

The mesh in the net in the picture is four and a half inches instead of the standard three-and-a-half measurement. Experiments have shown that use of the larger mesh saves 80 per cent of the under-sized fish, and does not reduce the size of the catch of the larger, marketable fish. But the commercial fishermen have to be shown.

One of the many tasks of the Albatross III is to prove by actual demonstration that this is true. It is a big job. And the department of the interior has a big man at the head of it. The dwarf in the photograph to whom Krug is talking (according to figures on my White House pass provided by the secret service) is 5 feet, 11 inches tall—and I am standing on my two feet, not kneeling.

HOME TOWN REPORTER

Communism's Real Menace Is Destruction of Religion

THERE can be only one excuse for the complacency with which a vast segment of the people of this country view the spread of communism. They don't know what it means, they don't know what it is and they underestimate its danger to every individual and the ideology and way of life we have chosen for our own in these United States.

Hitler's fascism was a political theory. The communism of Marx and Stalin is not only political, it is a religion as opposed to the Christian religion as it is possible to imagine. Communism denies the existence of God; it denies the dignity of a man or of the family as the unit for which the state functions; it bars the practice of any Christian religion.

All of western Europe and the western hemisphere maintain governments and civilizations based on the Christian philosophy of Jesus Christ. Our own government is based on these precepts. If this philosophy of Christianity goes down, then this government goes down. And it is in grave danger—in danger because people do not realize the danger.

Pope Pius has recognized the danger to Christianity in denying the sacraments of their church to Catholics who profess communism, not because it is a political theory but because it is a religion which endangers the foundations of Christianity and Christian civilization as we know it.

Communism is the road back to paganism. There can be no inalienable rights of man under communism; there can be no just powers with the consent of the governed under communism; there can be no Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, Christian Science or Catholic churches; there can be no free elections; no such philosophy as men being created equal. Most world leaders recognize only its dangers politically as moving relentlessly and aggressively to grab governments. Political and religious leaders who think, see communism breeding in hate and intolerance and capturing men's minds and souls as well as their political freedom.

What happens economically in the home towns of the country turns up later in the cities. Reports already indicate that business in these smaller towns is falling off. The fact that more than 1.2 million new small businesses have been established since V-J day and that 48 per cent of American families still have incomes lower than $3,000 may furnish a disastrous answer to the question of how nationwide inflation eventually will end.

The chances are that the first thing the 81st congress will take up when it convenes next January is an income tax law putting back on the books the taxes which this congress, as a sop to gain votes in an election year, took off. So if you don't have to spend that tax cut you received, save it and you'll have it to pay back next January.

Constitutional Rights

This column is not going to join the chorus of predictions that President Truman will not be renominated or that he will withdraw from the race for renomination. It would be like him to withdraw voluntarily if he believed the good of the country demanded it, but he will not quit under fire.

He offended some 1,500,000 Jewish voters perhaps, when he realized that it would take American boys to defend partition of Palestine, that we didn't have the men to send, that congress never would agree to it and that it likely would also bring Russian troops where this country, didn't want them to jeopardize overall foreign policy.

He offended the governors and professional politicians from seven southern states when he upheld the constitution of the United States, his own party platform and decisions of the supreme court on civil rights.

The President thinks there should be an anti-lynch law, an anti-poll tax law as a requisite for voting, and a permanent fair employment practices law to prevent "unfair" discrimination. And he thinks that segregation or Jim Crowism should be eliminated on interstate transportation lines, not local buses or street cars. The supreme court has held that segregation on interstate transportation lines is unconstitutional. The Constitution outlaws the poll tax as a voting condition.

Again the Constitution says: "... No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of any citizen of the United States, nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws." That's pretty clear and takes care of lynching and unfair discrimination.

The move to amend the Constitution with regard to presidential elections is gathering steam and direct vote of the people for president may become a reality.

Our most profound thanks to Prof. Thurman B. Rice of University of Indiana for his succinct comment on our most disliked vegetable: "We should feed the spinach to the cows and drink the milk only—only the cows won't eat spinach."

The world's largest herd of dwarf cattle recently reached Chicago—five cows and bulls totaling less than the weight of an average steer. Now I know where that steak I got last night came from.

The Australian government is anxious that Australian girls who married American servicemen return to Australia with their husbands. Some of the girls are anxious to return to Australia, period.

Farmers say egg prices are too low, considering the high cost of poultry feed. Which comes first: The chicken, the egg or the feed?

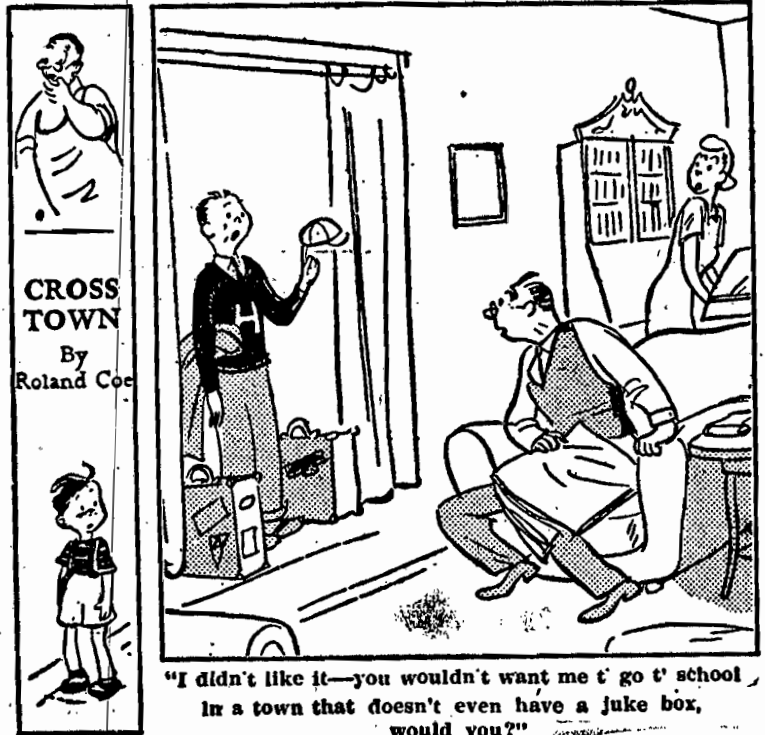

Old songs are being revived, but there still are a lot of people who would rather hear "Beautiful Ohio" than "Missouri Waltz."

Few Americans sipping their coffee, says Mid-America Information bureau, know that the berries from which it is made look a good deal like cherries. And for that matter, few Americans, sipping their Manhattans, say I, know that the cherries in them look a good deal like coffee berries.

Mrs. Russell Fifer, one of National Safety Council's "wonder wives"—whose husbands admit their better halves are good drivers—says good sense makes them good drivers. Good sense makes their husbands admit it.

The Eskimos of Greenland at first laughed at gold coin offered them in payment for skins; they wanted steel, which was useful to them. There's a faint suspicion that maybe we shouldn't laugh at them.

France's "war emergency" rent controls, invoked in 1914 at the start of World War I, still are in effect. We know many renters, particularly veterans, who wish the same were true here.

Our friend carried it across the road and laid it down by the Cheswell gate. Yours Truly was so curious that she walked over to see what it was. By this time the man had driven off in an automobile. I walked up and then down and could not at first discover anything. Finally I looked down by the gate and found the long chain or rope was the biggest black snake I had ever seen. He seemed half dead, but after poking him with a stick he came to life and ran his tongue out at me.

My neighbor, Fred Philbrick then came over and I asked him if he was going to kill him. He said, "No that he wouldn't do any harm only eat the bugs." Well maybe not but where are the bugs?

I guess that must be the Devil I dreamed about one night, that they were digging up in the old cemetery. I never did find out as I was so frightened I woke right up.

It is too bad the cemetery can't be fixed up. It is a disgrace to Proud Street. It is covered with blackberry bushes and poison ivy and weeds and is the courting place of all Tomcats in the neigh-
