

STATE HEALTH DEPT. X-RAY BUS UNIT TO BE IN NEWMARKET

The State Health Department X-Ray bus unit will be in Newmarket on October 18 and 19.

The following procedure will take place:

1. The individual to be X-rayed fill in an application card at the X-ray unit or preferably prior to the unit's arrival. The card should be completed in full.

2. The card is numbered by the clerk, after which it is handed to the technician who takes the X-ray. Since it is not necessary for the person to undress, the process of taking the picture requires only a matter of seconds.

3. The X-ray and the identification card are sent to the roentgenologist who reads the pictures and signifies on the card whether the disease is evident. The reports are available two to four weeks following the completion of a survey.

4. When the X-ray reading indicates no significant disease, one part of the application blank with the individual's name and address is placed in a window envelope and mailed to the addressee. (Please print plainly and give complete mailing address.) On the reverse of this card appears the statement that the condition of the individual's lungs appears satisfactory.

5. If evidence of disease or significant trouble is discovered in the X-ray, the X-ray reading is sent to the private physician whose name the individual gives on the application card. Simultaneously, a notice is sent to the individual requesting him to contact his physician for further examination and advice.

The object of the chest X-ray survey is to pick out in a group of apparently healthy adults (15 years and over) those persons with abnormal X-ray findings, so that they may have the benefit of a full clinical examination. Although this service is rendered primarily for the purpose of detecting tuberculosis, many other chest conditions can be discovered and the individual benefited thereby.

There is no charge for the X-ray pictures taken on the Mobile Unit.

Cards for the X-ray Mobile Unit can be obtained from Miss Fletcher the school nurse, Mrs. Mildred Priest at Priest's store on Main street, Mrs. Anne Coolidge of the Great Bay Pilot, Mrs. Ralph Longa and Mrs. Bernard Sullivan of New Village.

New Hampshire draft boards were notified recently to send 117 men to Manchester next month for physical examinations.

From that group 31 will be chosen for the state's first quota on Nov. 15 in the peacetime draft. County calls are: Belknap, six; Sullivan, seven; Hillsboro, 36; Carroll, four; Cheshire, nine; Coos, 10; Grafton, 10; Rockingham, 13; Strafford, 10 and Merrimack, 12. Mr. And Mrs. Thompson

We hope you like the picture in our paper this week. They are of Warrant Officer Thomas Thompson and Mrs. Thompson, the former Alice Goudreau.

Mrs. Thompson was for two years a WAAC. She was stationed in Florida where she met her husband, whose home was in Tennessee. They were married in Florida, and after peace was declared they moved to Detroit. Warrant Officer Thompson, as you will see from last week's issue of the News, is now stationed in the Air Corps in Manila, where Mrs. Thompson will soon join him.

COMMUNITY GUILD HEAR TALK ON MEXICO

The Community Church Guild meeting held in the vestry of the church Tuesday evening was very interesting and instructive, especially the talk on Mexico given by Mrs. G. R. Robinson of Durham.

Professor and Mrs. Robinson worked with the commissioner of rural schools, among the young people of Mexico.

The professor showed some beautiful pictures which he had taken of places of interest in Mexico.

Mrs. Robert L. Blicie of Durham gave several fine violin selections accompanied by Mrs. Ira Hull of Lee, pianist.

The food sale will be Oct. 22 in the electric light office window, and also on that date our church is invited to Durham Community church to hear a speaker from India in the afternoon.

The next regular meeting of the Guild will be on November 2nd, election day.

On November 5th the Council of Churches will meet in Newfields and bundles to be sent away will be made up.

The Guild will hold their Christmas sale on November 12.

Refreshments were served at this time. There were about 40 present.

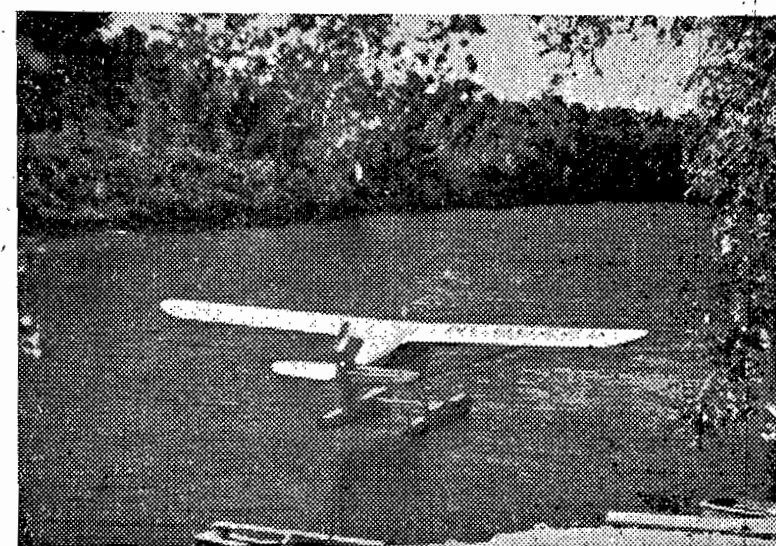

ROMEO LOISELLE GETS LOST WHILE ATTENDING GAME

Ralph Willey, Harry Marelli, Gordon Rodrigues and Romeo Loisel attended the ball game Sunday between the Red Sox and the New York Yankees. Near the close of the game Romeo offered to go and buy the tickets for Monday's game as they all wished to go.

Our three friends were so interested in watching the Red Sox win that they forgot all about Romeo until the close of the game, and then looked all around for him, but Romeo couldn't be found. Where was he? He was lost. After getting the tickets he started towards the car, but where was it? He couldn't find boys, car, ball game or anything. After hunting a long while to no avail, he telephoned home he was coming on the bus, as he couldn't find the car. Finally the boys found the lost Romeo and all landed home safe at eleven o'clock p. m.

They went to the ball game Monday between the Red Sox and Cleveland, but kept their eye on Romeo so he wouldn't get lost again.

JOHNNY HOLMES PILOT OF SEA PLANE

Here is the story of Johnny Holmes, the young man whose seaplane has been moored in Lamprey river for several weeks. I should say moored part of the time as Johnny takes trips in his plane back and forth and carries passengers if they wish to go.

Our friend learned to fly under the G. I. Bill. He took lessons in Hampton and has been flying for a man named Sly in Northwood who has an air base there. Johnny has been flying a year.

He took a passenger to Ontario recently. Then flew over the Green mountains, the Adirondacks and Lake Champlain. On the return trip the plane left Ontario about three o'clock and landed in Newmarket at a quarter to seven.

Mr. Holmes also has a motorcycle which he made himself out of old parts he picked up here and there, but it goes and doesn't make near the noise some of the fancy ones do who go whizzing by the house.

SIX-YEAR-OLD CATHERINE SHELTON DIES SERIOUS SKULL INJURIES WHEN HIT BY CAR

Catherine Shelton, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. King Shelton, died last night at a Boston hospital of injuries received when hit by a car officials said was operated by her brother, James Shelton, about 22.

The young girl was removed to a Boston hospital for an emergency operation early yesterday after she had been hospitalized temporarily at the Exeter hospital over night.

Police Chief Andrew Gordon said the young girl suffered a fractured skull in the accident on Main street, directly opposite the Rockingham Shoe company Tuesday afternoon. The driver said his sister ran into the path of the car.

LIONEL BOLDUC KILLED BY FALL

Lionel Bolduc, 39, sustained fatal injuries, when he fell down a flight of stairs leading into his cellar of his home at 11 Addison street, Laconia, late Sunday evening. Death was caused by a broken neck.

Mr. Bolduc was a native, and life long resident of Laconia and had been employed at the C. A. Lund Ski factory and was a steward at the St. Jean Baptiste society.

His wife, who had left for Florida last week with her brother, Leo A. Poulin, was notified and started home.

In addition to his wife, Mr. Bolduc is survived by two daughters, Elaine eight, and Simone, six; two sisters, Mrs. Amedee Hamel of Laconia and Mrs. Mamie Potter of Rochester, N. Y.; four brothers, Omer, Arthur and Alfred, all of Laconia and Wilfred of Durham.

A mass of requiem was sung on Thursday morning at Sacred Heart church, Laconia.

MISS J. BRADY GOES FISHING IN ALASKA

This summer during the month of July and August Josephine Brady worked at a hotel in Alaska.

One fine day as there was much work in the hotel, Josephine and a girl friend decided to go fishing. They accordingly put their old clothes and rubber boots and taking their fishing rods, walked to the stream of where the salmon were. Josephine caught seven salmon, not over them under 18 inches and of them over.

The girls started about eight in the morning and were back at 3:30.

Josephine is now very teaching school. She teaches first grade and has 22 children.

PARTRIDGE BREAKS GLASS IN WINDOW

Mrs. Rene Levesque was on her front porch, Monday when she heard an awful noise and the breaking of glass. The noise seemed to come from front room and upon investigation she discovered a pane of glass one of the windows smashed pieces, and on the floor was a bird flopping around. She closed the door and called Jesse Carpenter. He looked over and thought at first it was a hawk, but upon closer investigation discovered it was a partridge. The poor thing seemed to be injured. No one saw it fly in, was all over the place. Mrs. Levesque's son-in-law said it was a good meal, so the partridge was put out of its misery.

Now Mr. Levesque will not go hunting any more, but he suggests that he leave his window open so they can fly in easily, or he better keep a pane of window glass on hand.

MRS. PRESTON G BIRTHDAY PARTY

Monday evening Mrs. Alfred Preston invited Mr. and Mrs. Preston and Jerry and Margaret Nute to her home for as it was Mrs. Preston's birthday. There was a beautiful party and gifts for Mrs. Preston.

Bernadotte's Murder Dramatizes Palestine Question; East-West Crisis Reaches Final Peak as U.N. Meets

By BILL SCHOENTGEN
WNU Staff Writer

EDITOR'S NOTE — When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union news analysts, and not necessarily of this newspaper.

HOLY LAND: Murder

The sullen-faced, uniformed men in the jeep didn't say a word after they had stopped the procession of United Nations cars that was winding through the Katamon section of Jerusalem.

Carrying a machine gun, one of them walked up to the automobile in which Count Folke Bernadotte and Col. Andre Pierre Serrot were sitting, looked inside and started shooting.

The two killers fled, leaving Serrot dead and Bernadotte mortally wounded. The U. N. Palestine mediator died as he was being carried into Hadassah hospital on a stretcher.

For Bernadotte, head of the Swedish Red Cross, nephew of the king of Sweden, diplomat and humanitarian, it was a wretched, futile end.

His death was mourned not only by governments but by millions of ordinary citizens, yet he died not knowing when or if ever his assiduous and sincere efforts to organize peace in the Holy Land would be fulfilled.

Bernadotte's assassination brought Jerusalem—and all of Palestine, for that matter—perilously close to the brink of general violence. There was danger, too, that the uneasy Arab-Jewish truce might fall to pieces under the circumstances.

For the time being, Bernadotte's killers remained unidentified. The Israeli government called it the work of Stern gang terrorists and issued an edict outlawing that extremist group.

In Oslo, Norway, U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie added his panegyric to the praise that was being heaped on the martyred Bernadotte.

"He burned with eagerness to bring about an understanding between Arabs and Jews. He thought always of justice and peace."

FINAL REPORT: 'End It Now'

As the United Nations general assembly convened for its fateful 1948-49 session in the Palais de Chaillot the member nations took time out to pay somber tribute to Count Folke Bernadotte, their representative in Palestine who had died while trying to implement the peace of which they were supposed to be the architects.

Then they began consideration of the plan for an enforced Palestine settlement that Bernadotte had submitted before his death.

THE SWEDISH COUNT'S final 35,000-word report recommended that the Arab-Jewish war should be "pronounced formally ended." If the Arabs and Jews refuse to make peace, the U. N. should do so itself, the report said.

It calls for changes in the boundaries of the U. N. partition plan adopted in November, 1947, proposing that the Negeb desert be given to the Arabs and that the Jews should receive all of Galilee instead of only the eastern part.

Other recommendations include:

1. INTERNATIONALIZATION of Jerusalem by placing it under U. N. control.
2. ESTABLISHMENT of a technical boundaries commission to delimit the new frontiers.
3. CREATION of a Palestine conciliation commission to deal with population exchanges and supervise other parts of U. N. decisions.

4. SETTLEMENT of the problem of 380,000 Arab refugees by giving them the right to return to their homes in Jewish territory or to receive compensation if they choose not to return.

It was a good plan, the United States thought, and Secretary of State Marshall announced that this nation would back it to the fullest extent. Said Marshall:

"THE UNITED STATES considers that the conclusions contained in the final report of Count Bernadotte offer a generally fair basis for settlement of the Palestine question."

He called it "the best possible basis for bringing peace to a distracted land," adding that "No plan could be proposed which would be entirely satisfactory in all respects to every interested party."

It began to look as if Marshall was too right about that, because the Jews received the plan with, at best, cool detachment, while the Arabs objected outright, asserting that it did nothing but shift the boundaries a little while still providing for the existence of a Jewish state which the Arabs firmly oppose.

RUSSIANS: Western Stand

Those who, in commenting on the strained relationship between the East and West, have been wont to say, "It'll get worse before it gets any better," probably had reached the end of their rhetorical rope.

For it was unlikely that it could get any worse without producing armed conflict of some kind. This, it appeared, was the top of the heap of crises that had been piling up for two years.

There were these developments: THE AMERICAN, British and French ambassadors, who had been talking with Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Premier Stalin in Moscow for six weeks, left the Russian capital, presumably ending the four-power discussions.

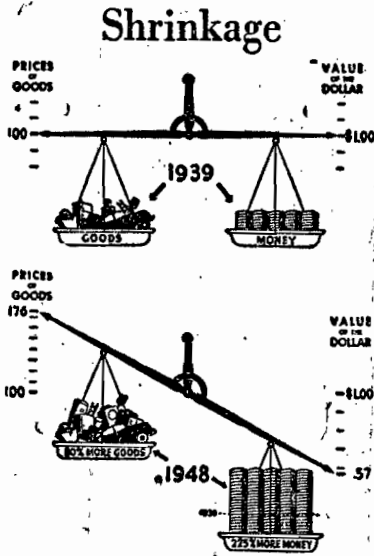

THE THREE western powers asked the Kremlin for a simple and final "yes or no" on the question of whether Russia will lift its blockade of Berlin.

U. S. SECRETARY of State George Marshall, speaking before the U. N. general assembly, warned the Soviet Union that American patience should not be mistaken for weakness.

With the Moscow talks at an end the center of action in the crisis had shifted to Paris where the issue probably would be settled one way or another in the United Nations.

The western nations—the U. S., France and Great Britain—plainly had had enough and were determined not to give another inch.

In an hour-long speech before parliament, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin expressed his nation's determination: "We are firm-

Since 1939 the total number of dollars in circulation in the U. S. has more than trebled—from 33 billion to nearly 109 billion—while our industrial production of goods to buy has less than doubled. Result: Cheaper money. Each dollar's proportionate worth in goods has fallen until it now takes 1.76 dollars to buy as much as one dollar would buy in 1939. Over three times as many dollars bidding frantically for less than twice as much goods equals inflation.

ly resolved to go on with our policy.

"I AM NOT SAYING by that that we are committed to war and all the other things that might ensue. We have not reached that stage yet."

Speaking to the United Nations in Paris, George Marshall, U. S. secretary of state, outlined the basic U. S. foreign policy in much the same manner as Bevin. The United States, he said, would not "compromise the essential principles" or "barter away the rights and freedoms of other peoples."

At the same time, the U. S., England and France sent identical notes to Russia insisting upon an early settlement of the German problem and a quick solution of the Berlin blockade.

There it stood—a big, tough problem for the United Nations which might have to stand or fall on any decision it might render.

What Makes It Bounce?

Atomic energy research may provide the answer to a 200-year-old question: What makes rubber bounce?

Dr. Howard E. Fritz, vice president in charge of research for the B. F. Goodrich company at Akron, Ohio, said that experiments along that line are being conducted in the concern's new research center.

Atomic energy by-products, he said, may help solve that mystery.

PRICE AID: Sure Thing

One thing is dead sure about the coming election: No matter who gets into office, farm price supports will be continued.

Governor Dewey is on record as favoring the Hope-Aiken law passed by congress last June, and President Truman says he is in favor of farm price supports and has been all along.

BOTH SIDES have promised their help to the nation's farmers.

As a result of the growing amount of light that has been shed upon the idea of price supports there has been a lot of argument as to whether they keep up costs of living in the city and, hence, contribute generally toward inflation.

The system was started in the 1930s to save farmers from bankruptcy caused by surplus production and lack of consumer buying. It accomplished that end.

IT WAS CHANGED during the war to make farmers produce more food than the country needed to feed less fortunate nations who were fighting the Axis. It did that.

After the war this incentive system was continued to keep greater amounts of food flowing into destitute areas abroad. It was successful in that, also.

Now, however, as a result of this artificial stimulation, production is beginning to pile up in the U. S. The wartime pattern of price support no longer fits the American market.

WARREN: Sugar and Spice

While President Truman was busy telling the people out West "If you vote Republican you'll deserve what you get," and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was inveighing against the "incompetent" Democrats now in office, Gov. Earl Warren of California, GOP vice presidential nominee, was startling people in the East by giving his campaign speeches a new look.

HIS, APPARENTLY, was a good will campaign, consisting of saying as many nice things as possible about his opponents.

Warren, who was nominated for governor by Democrats as well as Republicans, believes that the Democrats have contributed quite a bit to the nation during the 16 years they have been in power. A liberal himself, he is convinced simply that the Republicans can administer the New Deal better than the Democrats.

And in Kentucky, home state of Sen. Alben Barkley, Warren pronounced a surprising tribute to his vice presidential rival.

"BARKLEY," he said, "is a fine American and has made an important contribution to the history of our country."

"Both parties have served our country well at times," he said on one train platform speech in Kentucky. "The Democratic party has done its part."

Dewey and Eggs

In sharp contrast to Henry Wallace's unsavory experience with eggs in the South, the product of the hen brought nothing but good to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, GOP presidential candidate. At his Pawling, N. Y., farm he was made honorary member of the national "Good Egg" club and was presented with an egg-bedecked plaque by Hobart Creighton (left), GOP nominee for governor of Indiana and president of the Poultry and Egg national board.

? Current Events ?

If you haven't been spending all your evenings taking the dog for a walk or fixing the hen house, chances are you've been reading about some of the events on which the following five questions are based. Can you answer them?

1. The United Nations general assembly recently convened in Paris for a 10 or 12-week fall session. What is the name of the elaborate building in which the assembly is meeting?

2. The American, British and French ambassadors who have been conferring with Molotov recently took their leave of Moscow. Can you name them?

3. This year, 16 years after he soared 10 miles into the stratosphere in a balloon, a Belgian scientist-explorer plans to plunge two miles under water to investigate the deep sea world. Who is he?

4. Who is the man who took the assassinated Count Bernadotte's place as U. N. mediator in Palestine?

5. Princess Elizabeth of England was in the world spotlight when she got married last November. Now she is in the news again for a different reason. What is it?

ANSWERS

1. Palais de Chaillot.
2. Walter Bedell Smith (U. S.), Frank Roberts (British), Yves Chaigneau (French).
3. Prof. Auguste Piccard.
4. Ralph Bunche, an American, Bernadotte's assistant.
5. She is expecting a baby in November.

ANSWER MAN: Brannan

When it comes to questions Secretary of Agriculture Charles Brannan gets all kinds, many of which have nothing to do with farming.

Pouring in at the rate of 3,000 a day, the queries vary from: "How do I bury cats in the ground?" to "What was Little Eva's last name in the play, 'Uncle Tom's Cabin?'" and "Can you recommend a lonely hearts club? Three of us girls are interested."

Some of the questions are enough to startle even a cabinet secretary. For instance:

What does it look like inside a tank? Should the President keep his hat on when placing a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier? Does angora wool grow after it is made into a sweater?

What color eyes do sheep have? Do animals have spring fever? How can I get a divorce in Florida? Can silk be made from codfish?

And there was this one: "Please help a poor girl who is losing her hair and is almost bald."

HOME OWNERS: Record High

One of the most maddening of all the modern paradoxes is that while millions of American families are searching desperately for decent places to live, at the same time more American families own their own homes now than ever before in history.

About 49 per cent of the nation's non-farm families owned their homes at the beginning of this year, it has been revealed by a federal reserve board survey. That comes to a total of 18.5 million city and town families.

The survey showed about 45 per cent of non-farm families—a total of about 17 million—were renting their living quarters at the beginning of 1948. Approximately two million others were living rent free with someone else.

"The acute shortage of rental units has no doubt forced many families to buy homes, often at inflated prices and somewhat beyond their means, simply in order to obtain shelter," the report stated.

And, of course, this unprecedented swing to home ownership may not be permanent, the federal reserve board said. The number of owners is likely to drop away if there is an economic slump.

THERE'S NO EXCUSE

America's Rural Fire Loss Can Be Cut

Although fire prevention week is over for this year, the danger of farm fires is not over and possibly never will be.

But that seeming inevitability is no excuse. As a matter of fact, fire protection experts say, there is no longer any excuse for America's 100-million-dollar annual farm fire loss.

The means to reduce it are available to almost any community that wants to make the effort.

Principal means of cutting rural fire losses, according to the National Board of Fire Underwriters, is a good volunteer fire department, quartered in a small town but serving the surrounding area that has been organized into a fire protection district, such as now is authorized in 39 states.

The volunteer fire departments in small towns not only need to be good, but they need constant improvement because of their growing responsibilities. The small town fire company has to protect an extensive area, much of it without water supplies. It also may be forced to fight a million-dollar blaze in the town's leading factory. That's because of the increasing tendency of big manufacturing firms to locate in small towns.

In many ways the volunteer fire department in a small town has a bigger job than a city company.

PASSING SHOW

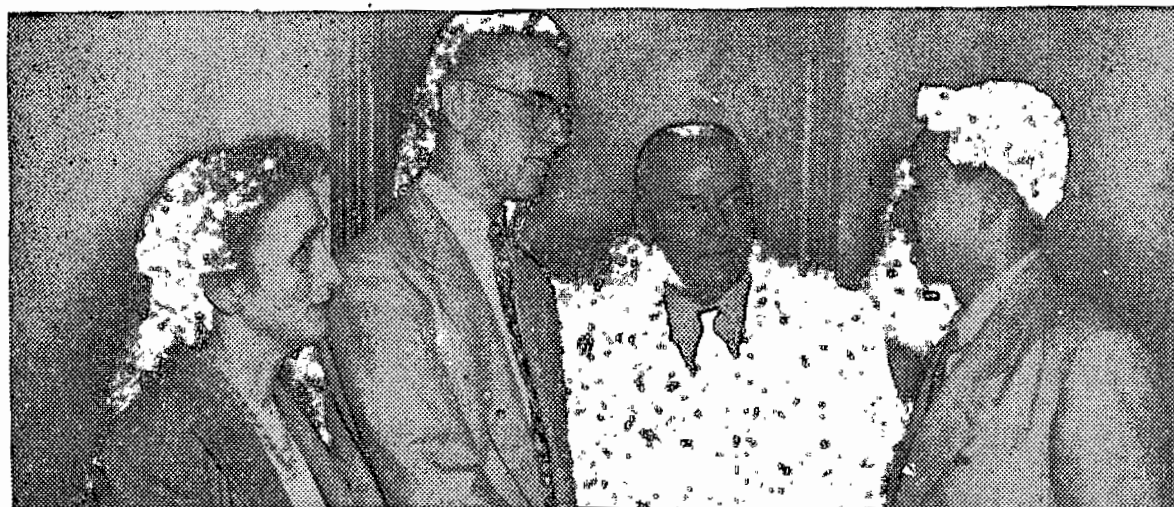

PICTURE REVIEW

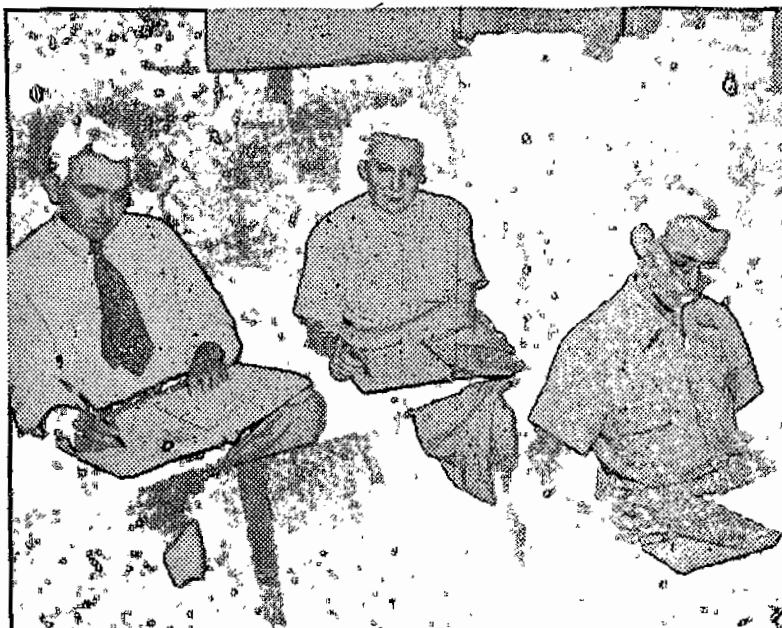

WHO CASTS THE FIRST STONE . . . For a study in the brutalized emotions that can grip men who are caught in the surge of mob action, take a look at this picture of some young French aviation workers in the middle of a big riot in Paris. They are posing defiantly with hands filled with stones and chunks of broken concrete which they hurled at police during the recent riot of the members of the nationalized aviation industry in the French capital. Several persons, including police, were injured in the clash which was touched off when the workers staged a mass demonstration outside the industry's headquarters.

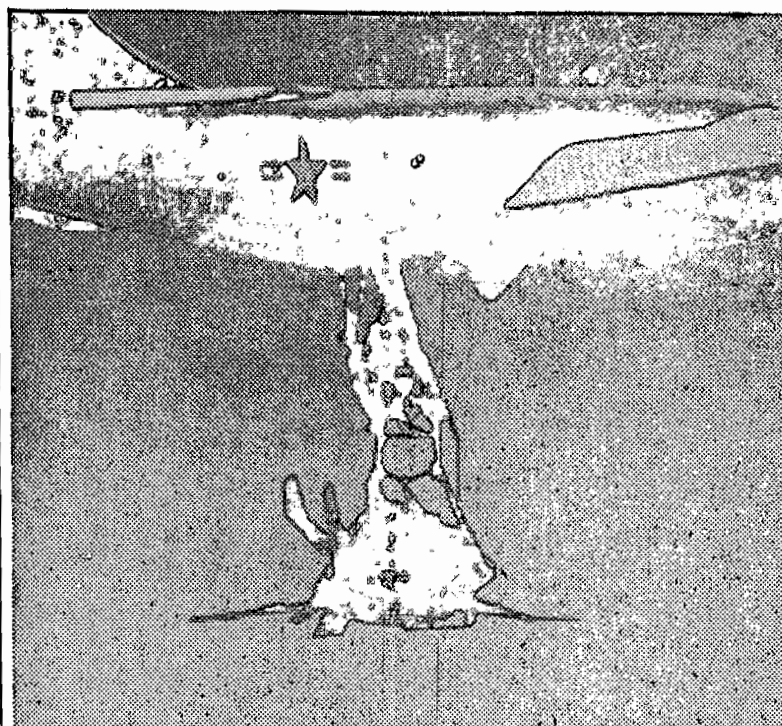

THAT'S HOW TUNNELS ARE BORN . . . The final "breaking through" of the rock barrier where the two sections of the Brooklyn-Manhattan tunnel join underneath the waters of New York harbor took place with a considerable bang as a dynamite charge was used to blast a hole through the last few feet of rock separating the two ends of the tunnel. The project, which has been under construction since 1940 and will cost 70 million dollars, is expected to be open for motor vehicle traffic in 1950. Above, Sam Allen, superintendent of the Brooklyn section, shakes hands with Andy Amisano of the Manhattan section.

HERITAGE OF AN AMERICAN SOLDIER . . . When Pvt. Robert Johnstone Jr., of Easton, Pa., was killed in action in the battle for the Philippines, he left behind him a will that many would call strange. He directed that his G.I. insurance of $10,000 should be used to educate a Japanese in the American way of life. This year his "love thine enemy" idea bore fruit. Robert Nishiyama (right above), a student kamikaze pilot during the war, arrived at Lafayette college, Easton, Pa., to start classes on a scholarship financed by Pvt. Johnstone's will. Here, he is greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Johnstone and their son Bruce.

EDUCATION IS A FAMILY AFFAIR . . . On the theory that knowledge is power, the Aloys Daack family of State Center, Iowa, shifted into high gear and went off to college together. Mother, Dad and 17-year-old Jim Daack enrolled in a body at Carthage college, Carthage, Ill., for a family fling at higher education. Mother and son are freshmen, and the father, a navy veteran, is a junior. Moved by an ambition to become a doctor, Aloys is taking a pre-medical course. Here, the trio is waiting for their German class to begin.

PARASITE IN FLIGHT . . . Most radical of all new jet aircraft is the air force's McDonnell XF-85 parasite fighter which is carried in bomb bays of long-range bombers and launched from a trapeze attachment on the underside of the mother ship. The tiny plane, with a wing span of 21 feet and length of 15 feet, is shown as it was carried aloft by a B-29 during a recent test flight at Muroc air base, Calif.

PEACE FOR BERNADOTTE . . . The consensus on Count Folke Bernadotte among the people of the world will be that it is nobler by far for a man to die in quest of peace than to lay down his life in war. The Swedish U. N. mediator in the Palestine dispute was shot to death by assassins in Jerusalem while he was working toward a solution of the strife between Arabs and Jews in the Holy Land.

The Missionary Committee of the True Memorial Baptist church, under the leadership of Mrs. Emma Meader, has planned a Missionary Conference to be conducted in the church October 6th through 10th. The special meetings will begin this Wednesday evening with the presentation of the sound-color movie film, "God of the Atom," which illustrates the urgency of Christian missions. On Thursday evening two of the greatest missionary leaders of the continent will present the challenge of missions by sound film. Movies will bring messages to the audience by Dr. Oswald J. "Handicapped workers are excellent workers when placed on jobs for which they are physically and otherwise qualified," McConnell said. "A man may have a serious physical handicap but if he is placed in a position which does not call for physical activities which he cannot perform, he is not handicapped so far as the job is concerned."

McConnell said that the handicapped applicants in Strafford County who represent nine percent of all current applications are in the following skill groups: 2 professional and managerial, 5 clerical and sales, 7 service, 1 agricultural, 7 skilled, 17 semi-skilled and 9 beginning workers.

McConnell said that the survey of the placement activities for the handicapped showed progress had been made during the last year in reducing the number of disabled veterans and handicapped civilians seeking jobs.

The Rochester office has placed 144 handicapped persons since the beginning of last October.

In urging employers to list their job openings for disabled workers, with the Employment Service office, McConnell pledged that the local office will refer to employers only those who are qualified to fill these job openings.

In addition to the "meatball" each enlisted man having served on board the Orion for at least six months of the competition year is entitled to wear an "E" on the sleeve of his uniform and receives a cash award as well. Women Beat Men
In Farm Safety

Are farm women more safety conscious than their husbands? A recent farm safety survey conducted in Illinois seems to indicate they are.

According to W. W. Whitlock, safety director of the Illinois agricultural association, 217 farm people in Illinois lost their lives in farm and home work accidents last year. Of these, only 12 were women.

Of course, the men folks are exposed to more hazards in field work, but Whitlock says that national statistics show that the home also is the scene of many accidents. Because of the result of the survey, Whitlock is starting a campaign among women to make their husbands more safety conscious.

Dewey Warned About Dulles

IT ISN'T being advertised, but Governor Dewey has received some firm but friendly advice from high-up Republicans to think twice before he appoints John Foster Dulles as his secretary of state.

The opposition to Dulles is partly on the ground that he is one of Wall Street's most prominent lawyers, partly because of the disastrous role Dulles played in selling the American public on the now defaulted German bonds prior to 1938 when leading American economists were warning that they would be worthless paper.

One high-up Republican who recently cautioned Dewey about Dulles was Sen. Styles Bridges (Rep., N. H.), chairman of the powerful senate appropriations committee. Bridges raised a new objection, namely Dulles' recommendation of Alger Hiss, alleged Communist, to be chairman of the Carnegie Peace Foundation.

The directors of the foundation, Bridges recalled, were lukewarm about Hiss but were pressured into the appointment by Dulles.

"Yes, he did make a mistake on that one," admitted Dewey.

Around the European Beat

If you want to see the American foreign correspondents in Europe, you'll find them in the Savoy Grill in London, at 21 Rue de Berri in Paris, the American Press club in Berlin, the Park hotel in Frankfurt, the Hotel de la Paix in Geneva, the Grand Bretagne in Athens and the Stampa Estera in Rome. If you stand close enough to their elbows, the chances are they'll be talking about:

The Norman Mailer best-seller, "The Naked and the Dead," which has the former war correspondents green with envy. The trained seals saw it all but left it to a GI to write the masterpiece. . . . The offhours literary activity of the American correspondents in Italy (everybody is writing a novel) since Lionel Shapiro (ex-CBS man in Rome) struck Hollywood gold with two books in a row. . . . The modesty of Homer Bigart who, despite the fact that he regularly scoops the pants off every foreign correspondent, is the most beloved guy in the business. . . . The talented toughness of Wes Gallagher, AP's Berlin chief, who has worn the same scowl practically since birth. His nickname: Laughing Boy.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Commies in Fur Industry

WHILE the leading characters of the fur and leather industry are on the subject of Communist union coercion and extortion, a little frankness from an observer who does not pretend to be particularly friendly might contribute to a good result.

The reason why I am not particularly friendly to the fur industry is that the railroads, utilities and banks got a good tanning each in turn and the public opinion was that it served them right and did them good. I wasn't particularly friendly to them.

The fur industry, which has a turnover of about one billion dollars a year in the city of New York alone, has never been stood in the lineup as it deserved to be, on the basis of a scurrilous record of corruption, greed and brutality. This was published in the volumes of the old Dies committee and never went any farther but the leaders of the industry do not need to be told about it.

PEGLER

"And he's made too many mistakes," urged Senator Bridges. "He made a terrible mistake regarding the Nazis. We just can't afford to have a man as secretary of state who makes mistakes. The problem of peace is too delicate."

Bridges also reminded Dewey that Dulles might have difficulty in being confirmed by the senate.

"We hope to give you a real majority in the senate in November," the New Hampshire senator explained. "But we may be darn lucky to keep what we've got. If so, and if only two or three Republicans oppose Dulles, then the Democrats will jump in en masse to fight his confirmation. They'll love it."

Dewey countered that Foreign Minister Molotov liked Dulles, and that ironing out our Russian problems was all important.

"He's the only man in America who can get along with Molotov," Dewey told Bridges.

"And, I suppose," quipped Bridges, "that Molotov is a good Republican and wants us to win in November."

Rita Hayworth, who spent most of August at Beaulieu (between Nice and Monte Carlo) driving herself around in a used French car which cost $900—new! . . . The story current around the European embassies that Washington plans to use the platform of the U. N. General Assembly to inaugurate a new "get tough" policy with Russia which will make Vishinsky's past diatribes sound like a lullaby. . . . American Intelligence, which expects the Communists to try to wreck the U. N. meeting in Paris.

The growing exhaustion of our air force pilots who've been flying the Berlin route since June 21. They see Yaks in their sleep as well as in the air. . . . Lt. Gen. Curtis LeMay, the "lift" commander, who made his reputation by never asking his pilots to do anything he wouldn't do himself. Every few days he walks out to "the circle" like any second louie and flies a freight plane to Berlin—just to see for himself how the thing is working.

And to anyone who offers the old platitude that the methods of the Dies committee were not judicial, I have to reply that the head men of the fur industry would rather let the testimony go unchallenged than take it to a formal trial where it would be proved beyond doubt.

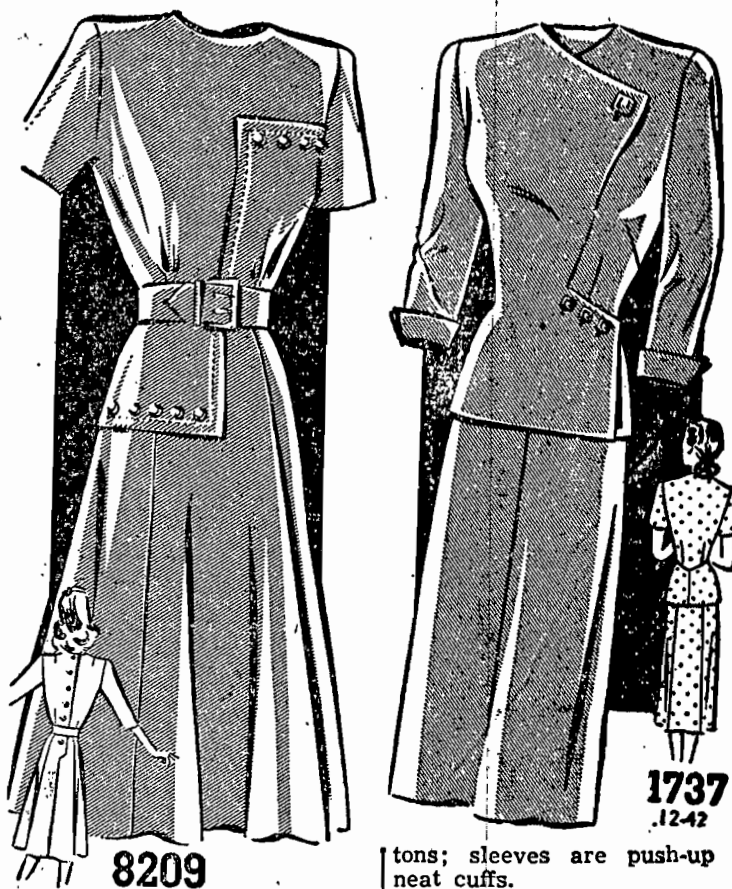

Another thing that I would say is that the hearings of the labor relations board during a time parallel with the life of the Dies committee were outrageous Kangaroo courts in which the judges were not only prosecutors but complaining parties as well.

I NEVER HEARD A SQUAWK FROM ELEANOR THE GREAT OR ANY OF HER CULT ABOUT THE INJUSTICE OF THAT.

Without preliminary, we can concede that the fur industry is more or less a unit politically and very much more so than less. It is, in all but the most formal sense, a lodge of the New Deal as you might picture a post in the American Legion organized to contain veterans in a given locality and with a common daily interest.

'BOOMERANG'

By ROY CONSTINER

Holloway wanted to disown Jimmy until a beautiful woman proved that father and son were cut from the same pattern.

TRAILING smoke from an expensive cigar, stoutish J. P. Holloway led his wife from the elevator and into his private office. "Knew the moment you called," he flared, "Jimmy had wired for more money. But I'll not send him one cent. Not one red cent! You understand?"

Mrs. Holloway settled herself in the nearest chair. The gentle expression on her small, motherly face did not change. "As a matter of fact," she said softly, "I did hear from Jimmy, but—"

"Knew it," J. P. interrupted, "knew it all along. You were sitting right here when I told him I would absolutely not tolerate any foolishness from him while he was attending college." He hesitated momentarily as he puffed furiously at his cigar, then added, "And now that he has gone and invested over his head in this—this blind enterprise with this woman whom he thought was his friend, and she has run out on him with the capital and left him without as much as fare—"

It was then the intercom buzzed.

J. P. flipped the button irritably. "Yes?"

"A Miss Jenkins to see you, sir," came a voice through the intercom set.

"Has she an appointment?" he asked.

"Oh, goodness!" Mrs. Holloway broke in hurriedly. "James, I forgot to mention her. I asked her to stop in today."

J. P. frowned. "Well, who is she?" he asked caustically.

"We met yesterday at Mrs. Wellington's dinner party," she replied, as she patted an imaginary gray hair in place; then added, "She is, I think, associated with the Delbarn Motor corporation in Detroit; therefore, I'm sure, in a position to help us buy a new car sooner than we could have hoped to otherwise. . . ."

"But I don't want a new car," he countered, "I have just had our old car overhauled."

"But—surely, James," she returned somewhat pleadingly, "you can spare her a moment."

J. P. paused momentarily as he relit his cigar, and then flipped on the intercom set. "Send Miss Jenkins in," he said briskly.

What J. P. saw entering his office a moment later was a dark, slender woman, and in the mid-afternoon light she was almost beautiful. The coil of her black hair pinned into a chignon at the nape of her neck, the tailored gray suit with the white pleated blouse was very becoming to her straight shoulders, and narrow slender hips, he thought.

"It's so nice of you to permit me a few minutes of your valuable time, Mr. Holloway," she began. Then, with a slight nod toward Mrs. Holloway, she added, "I've heard so much about you and your rapid advance in the business world, that it's really quite a pleasure. . . ."

J. P. grinned. "Thank you," he said, as he adjusted his tie. "I—"

"Your wife," the saleswoman interrupted, "has told me that you're interested in a new car."

"Well, I really—"

"That's fine," she leaned closer. "It's certainly a privilege to have this opportunity of explaining our new car and system to intelligent people." She paused to turn on additional charm. "The fact is, we are merely trying this new car out, and want only to try it through people of your high reputation."

"This," she laid some sheets carefully before J. P.—"will help you to understand the grand idea which our management has decided upon. It's really splendid!" She smiled, showing white pearl teeth.

J. P. studied the sheets a moment, and then looked up somewhat questioningly. "I notice something about a thirty day free—"

She smiled. "No, this is not exactly free. Yet, it is free in the sense that you'll not be paying for the new car at the present time. What you'll be paying the mere $250. for is absolutely prompt delivery of your new car within seven days after your deposit."

J. P. gave this a careful thought, then asked, "Supposing the car is not satisfactory, and the depositor decides he does not care for this type car?"

"That," she said quickly, "is a very good question. In fact, I'm glad you brought that up." She hesitated to ash her cigarette and, in doing so, seemed to be concentrating on the proper clauses to use, as she continued, "Now in the event you are not completely satisfied, the management will gladly refund your money and return the car to the factory. Isn't that fair enough, Mr. Holloway?"

"Oh, yes, quite fair," he said, through the haze of cigar smoke, as he resumed reading of the typed sheets. They seemed all in order. He thought. Though the thought of a new car was somewhat new to him, yet, this seemed to be such a good investment, in fact—too good to pass up. Why, he'd be getting the jump on the boys at the club, who were thinking and talking about getting their new cars next month. Next month! Why he'd have his within seven days. . . .

"But I don't want a new car," he countered, "I have just had our old car overhauled."

THERE was a brief hesitation, and then he said, "Sounds all right. But—"

Miss Jenkins broke in, "I can readily understand, Mr. Holloway, a man of your intelligence will be suspicious of an investment of this nature. And well you might be. Yet, I can assure you—you'll be patting yourself on the back within the next ten days."

J. P.'s eyes wandered across to Mrs. Holloway for her approval. No comment.

"And remember this, Mr. Holloway," the saleswoman continued amiably, as she laid a slender hand upon J. P.'s desk, "you'll again be setting the pace. The first to recognize a good proposition. Never let it be said, 'J. P. Holloway overlooked a good bargain.'" Whereupon they laughed heartily.

After a moment's pause, J. P. turned to Mrs. Holloway and said hesitantly, "You know Martha, we've had our old car some time

. . . he made a slight gesture with his free hand—"It's in good condition now that I've had it overhauled—yet, one cannot tell about those old models. Why, just the other day, John Fetters was telling about his old car's stalling in the noon-hour traffic on Fifth and Vine. We wouldn't want that to happen to us—would we—dear?"

Mrs. Holloway considered him solemnly. "But James," she began, "you said you were not interested in a new car—"

"Oh, I know, I know," he protested in alarm. "I wasn't—that is, until I heard this offer Miss Jenkins has made. And you should know that I never let a good proposition slip through my fingers. No, sir, not J. P. Holloway." He then turned and smiled at the saleswoman, a warm, intimate smile. Then continued, "To whom should I make this check out, Miss Jenkins?" he asked, as he fingered rapidly through his checkbook.

"James," Mrs. Holloway broke in, "perhaps we better not be too hasty. Supposing we talk this over this evening, and Miss Jenkins"—she nodded in the saleswoman's direction—"can drop in tomorrow and get your final decision." Turning quickly to Miss Jenkins, she added, "I'm sure that's perfectly all right with you!"

A shadow darkened the saleswoman's eyes. She glanced at J. P. and then back to Mrs. Holloway. "Well, I—" and stopped.

Mrs. Holloway smiled gently. "I knew you'd understand," she said, and then quickly rose to open the door for the somewhat bewildered saleswoman.

J. P. chewed at his freshly lit cigar furiously. "But Martha," he burst out, "you—you don't seem to understand. I want to buy that car—now—not tomorrow or next week or next Christmas—"

"Have you made the check out, James?" she asked calmly.

"And just what has that got to do with you running this—this woman out of here. I certainly intend to make it out. And furthermore—"

"Yes," she countered, "you're going to make it out, James. But not to her! Instead, to your son."

J. P. choked for a moment. "I—I told you," he flared, "I was not going to send him one cent, and I meant just that!" He tapped nervously on the desk with his forefinger. "Any man with the intelligence he's supposed to have, letting some silly woman come along and make a complete fool of him. . . . Well,"—he groaned—"it's sometimes difficult for me to believe he's my son."

Mrs. Holloway smiled. "But James, you've just proved beyond any doubt that he is your son."

J. P. gave her a blank look. "Just what do you mean by that?"

She paused. "It took me four days to inquire around and locate the right woman. It wasn't easy. In fact, I wasn't sure until yesterday."

J. P. grunted, a deep frown puckering his forehead. "I certainly don't follow you. First, you stop me from buying a new car; now you're talking in riddles." He brushed the ashes from his vest unconsciously, then added, "Would you mind explaining just what this is all about?"

She nodded. "No, I wouldn't mind. In fact, I've looked forward to it."

"All right, all right. I'm waiting," he urged.

"Just this: Your son fell for a charming woman with a smooth sales talk; so did you. Those sheets of paper in her briefcase aren't worth the paper they're written on. She's a phoney; so was Jimmy's friend. When I was introduced to her, she apparently didn't recognize my name, but I knew hers. She's the woman who swindled your son."

HINTS FOR A HAPPY HOME

Maternal Selfishness

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

HAS a girl the right to marry when that marriage means the breaking up of her mother's home?

That is the question that Louise Barton asks me. Louise is hardly a girl. She has passed her 29th birthday, and she has been engaged to her Douglas for seven years.

When they first hoped to marry, Doug was in the navy.

"But we didn't care, we were so happy," writes Louise. "There didn't seem any problem at all, then. If we had only gotten married, and told the family about it afterward, how different it all would have been! My father was living then, and Douglas' mother, too. My brother Peter got into the navy in the very last weeks of the war when he was 18.

"Now I am 29 instead of 22, Peter is soberly at work in an insurance office, Douglas' mother is dead, his old home broken up through the housing emergency into small apartments, and my mother a confirmed invalid.

"She has diabetic complications, stomach ulcers, blinding headaches, and a troublesome sacroiliac; enough trouble to keep her nervous and uncertain of herself. Some weeks Mother can be about, go to church and club, and perhaps the next week she collapses utterly.

Mother said to wait. . . .

Fears Mother's Attitude.

"It breaks my heart to desert Peter, leave him to the domestic and financial burden, and yet it breaks my heart, too, to delay my marriage any longer. In fact," writes Louise, warming to rebellion as the letter goes on, "everything would be ideal for me if it were not for Mother's attitude.

"She insists on going on in our old big uncomfortable house instead of selling it or renting part of it; she takes no account of the fact that Peter is engaged, and although his girl is handicapped now by the care of a paralytic father they have their hopes and plans, too.

"Douglas has established himself most successfully in a town about a hundred miles away; that isn't a great distance, but it means I can do little for Mother and Peter. He has a lovely little house there, all furnished, and we would love to have Peter with us.

"Why is it my duty? My mother says to wait, and that many girls do not marry nowadays until they are older than I am. But many do, and all my friends are happily establishing their nurseries and coming to consider themselves old married women. And wait for what? I don't want to wait for my mother's death, or count that in on my plans. What is your advice to a girl whose family claims are so heavy and yet who is so deeply in love?"

My advice to you, Louise, is to get married at once, and never for one moment consider your mother's inexcusable attitude. And my advice to Peter is the same. When she gets tired of playing sick, she will get well. When she gets tired of keeping up a cumbersome old house, she will get rid of it.

Injustice to Herself.

To let her jeopardize your life's happiness now is not only an injustice to you and your Douglas, but to herself, too. Whatever the sorrows, losses and disappointments of her life have been, and whatever her physical ills, they are strictly her personal property, and it is for her to handle them. You will have your own someday, and I hope you will remember then how you feel now.

Few marriages can stand the strain of a discontented, sickly, critical old person, right in the home circle. Such old persons, if you dig into their own history as young married folk, were invariably intolerant and critical when it came to their own old people, a generation earlier.

'LOVEST THOU ME'

WISTFULLY Christ's grave insistent voice

Is borne across the centuries, and we Who hear must answer, and must make a choice: "Lovest thou me?"

"Yea, Lord, we love Thee," quick we make reply. Then—"Feed my sheep," He says, and clear and plain

Along the ether ways of earth and sky The voice sounds out again:

"Lovest thou me?" He questions us, O friends, And may we answer truthfully today: "Yea, Lord," for all eternity depends On what we say.

One Reason Why Lumber And Box Materials Are High

Last Friday two local men were tried in Rochester, N. H. for having stole lumber; which they pleaded guilty. A low bail was allowed of only $300.

Within the past year Thousands of Dollars' worth of both Building Lumber and Box Lumber has been stolen by a Clique which some say they are in the lumber business, although they do not have their trucks so painted, nor do they have Billheads; go in some cases and purchase some lumber and seek out those who are in need of lumber and sell it, then come back and pay those whom they have bought from; and in other cases they see a field of lumber, and go and steal same.

Last Thursday the New England Lumbermen's Association held their fall meeting in Manchester, and they are going to strive with every known agencies, both Wholesalers and Retailers to help stop this practice of buying from some of these Fly by Night Operators.

All the State Police in Maine, New Hampshire, and Massachusetts, as well as the local police in each community are trying to stop this wholesale Stealing which has been going on; and now they have the cooperation of The Interstate Commerce Commission, the Registries of Motor Vehicles of the various states, as well as the Federal Government which will help prevent any recurrence of this practice.

The Police know places in Southeastern Massachusetts as well as places in Maine and New Hampshire which have been buying lumber, but some of those buying didn't know it was Stolen, or claimed that those they were buying from were large businessmen, and one of these bought from one of those caught stealing lumber and was tried in Rochester last week.

The Courts in future should put a Bail of from $2500 to $5000 in each case where they catch lumber being stolen, and when tried in court those owning lumber are going to demand a Jail sentence be given to those caught stealing and all lumbermen are going to try and have the Legislature put a law into effect, that no lumber shall go over the roads at night unless they have a Bill of Sale where it was bought, for those stealing lumber work in the night.

Native Vegetables

America is lucky in the matter of vegetables, some of the most delicious and nutritious being native to this continent, although most of them originated in South America. When the first colonists came from England they found the Indians cultivating corn (the ancestor of the modern sweet corn), beans and pumpkins in their little fields in clearings.

The seeds of English vegetables which the colonists had brought over did not grow well in the new soil and climate, so the settlers thankfully learned from the Indians how to grow corn, plant beans and pumpkins in the same hill, and bury a dead fish in each hill for fertilizer.

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.
Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Manufacturers Protest Against Court Ruling

WASHINGTON.—Loud hollers over the supreme court's price ruling are coming from steel users and building material dealers.

Congressional mail is increasingly filled with protests from small town manufacturers. They want to know, bitterly, if congress is going to let the supreme court put them out of business.

The supreme court decided in the "cement case" that uniform prices could not be used to maintain a combine among cement producers. And the steel industry, reading the ruling, shifted away from its traditional policy of maintaining uniform prices among themselves.

But it's their customers, who had based their businesses on the previous uniform-price policies, who are hollering now.

A Muskegon, Mich. building materials dealer puts a typical problem frankly. He buys cement from a concern at Detroit, 170 miles away. His competitor buys from a cement concern near Muskegon. A third dealer buys from a concern near Petoskey, which is not far away.

Always before the cement companies had supplied the three dealers at a uniform price. But now the dealer buying from Detroit has to pay 52 cents a barrel more; the dealer buying at Petoskey has to pay six cents more, and the dealer buying from the local source pays only one cent more.

The Muskegon customer of the Detroit supplier says he'll be out of business pretty soon, unless he can shift to the local supplier, who already can sell his entire product and isn't looking for new customers.

The building materials dealer can't move. He's there to serve the local trade. That's one type of protest which is coming in to congress by the hundreds.

The other protest is from the steel fabricator who located his plant near his market, or where he found labor, or where he could utilize an existing plant. Because he could buy steel at a uniform price, his distance from the steel supplier didn't matter then.

But now a spring-making company in Adrian, Mich., a seat-making company in Ionia, a company making casters in Grand Rapids and dozens of enterprises like them face an emergency.

How can they pay the cost of bringing in steel and still compete with that spring-making company at Pittsburgh that seat-building concern at Youngstown or the caster manufacturer at Gary?

"Many Michigan plants, among which we may be included, will be compelled to move to some steel producing center where excess steel capacity is available in order to eliminate excess transportation costs," one of these men wrote Senator Ferguson.

Similar protests are coming to Senator Capehart from Indiana, Senator Brooks from Illinois, Senator Donnell from Missouri and others.

These manufacturers, some of them, can move. And of course if they do there will be unemployment in the cities they leave and a scramble for labor in the cities they enter.

It's a serious problem.

BOBBY ZWIERCAN BUYS SOME SHOES

Bobby Zwiercan has some new shoes, and is he proud of them! One day last week Bobbie's mother gave him some money and told him that on his way home from school that noon he could go in and buy himself a pair of shoes. Bobby was much pleased. He thought that was the nicest thing

THE VILLAGES CHURCHES

In 1865 a stone meeting house was secured by Father Welsh, in which religious services continued to be held for many years. In 1878 Newmarket was made an independent parish, under the jurisdiction of Rev. John T. McDonnell, who thirty years previously had said the first mass in the town.

In this year the church was dedicated by Bishop Healey and land secured for burial purposes.

Rev. Cornelius O'Callaghan came in 1882 and after a few months' sojourn he was succeeded by the Rev. Dennis Ryan. The latter repaired and decorated the church and was replaced by Rev. Thomas E. Riley. Father Riley was born in Concord, in 1858, and after a course of studies in the public schools of his native town, attended the colleges of St. Hyacinthe and Three Rivers. After completing his theological studies at the latter place, he was ordained in Portland, Me., in 1883, and thereupon sent as assistant to the Very Rev. J. E. Barry of Concord. In 1884 he was invited to Manchester to assume the rectorship of the cathedral, in which charge he remained until his appointment to the pastorate of Newmarket.

In 1887, Father Reilly enlarged the old stone church, put in a basement, built a sacristy and equipped the building with a new heating apparatus. Two years after he secured a very eligible lot on Main street, and built the present rectory, and six years subsequently he further increased this property by a third purchase—the whole occupying a handsome square of nearly four hundred feet.

In the center of this square Father Reilly began to build the present St. Mary's church, in March, 1897 at which date the parish was free of debt. The corner stone of the new St. Mary's was laid by Bishop Bradley on Sept. 13, and the church was solemnly dedicated in October, 1898.

HON. JAMES B. CREIGHTON

A marked character, a striking personality identified with the early part of the last century, well remembered by many still living, was Col. James Brackett Creighton believed at home, honored abroad.

His father Stephen Creighton, was one of the old time school masters, while Hannah Brackett, who became his wife, was a woman possessing great force and energy, for when the subject of our sketch was an infant in arms, death robbed her of her natural protector, but accepting the loss with resignation she quietly took up the added burdens, and with energy for which New England's women are justly noted, applied herself to the task of providing a home and the rearing of her children. They were then in Exeter, and she opened her house to young men who had left the comforts of their homes and were seeking an education at Phillips Academy. In this atmosphere the early years of the lad was spent. He soon began to plan some way to assist his mother and to make his own way in the world.

In an exhaustive sketch of his life, prepared by him at the advanced age of over ninety years, he pictures himself as a remarkably thoughtful youth. He says: "James (himself) at the age of fourteen had made up his mind to learn a clothier's trade." He began immediately to lay and execute his plans to the accomplishment of that end, and in spite of youth he leaves his home, journeys to Lancaster with a pair of horses and a heavy wagon upon which was loaded a new and at that time a famous invention, no less than a machine for carding wool into rolls and no sooner is it set up in its place than the boy begins to study its mechanism and to learn how the wheels go around.

that could happen to a little boy. He could buy his shoes himself without any big folks butting in to tell him what to do.

There was just one thing that bothered him. He couldn't keep his mind on his books and he thought the forenoon never would go, but finally it did, and our young man hustled to the shoe store, bought his shoes and hurried home to show them to his mother. When she saw him she was much surprised and asked him why he was home so early. "Early, why it is dinner time isn't it?" said Bobby. His mother said it certainly wasn't. Then Bobby discovered what the trouble was. It was recess time and he was in such a hurry for his shoes he thought it was noon.

Well, we all make mistakes.

CPL. R. CUTLER NOW SERVING WITH 817TH ARMY ENG. CORPS

Cpl. Richard W. Cutler, USA, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orrin A. Cutler of 1 Cass street, Exeter, is now serving with the 817th Army Engineering Battalion and having a harder time than most civilians getting any building done in these days of shortages of lumber. Every time he and his buddies get a project completed elements of the air arm of the Navy and Marines as well as the Air Force, come along and blast it to toothpicks. As if that isn't enough, artillery and paratroopers move in and slug away at the project.

The occasion for all his seeming waste of lumber and man-power is the Ninth Air Force's Operation Combine III at Eglin Air Force Proving Grounds, Fla., a big air-ground demonstration involving 500 airplanes and 8500 men. The job of the engineers? They fill up the bomb craters and start building all over again! These targets represent everything from a man to an aircraft carrier. A total of 27 targets have been built. These targets have to be kept in constant repair from October 4 till early in November, as pilots pin-point their bombs, rockets and machine gun fire "Range 52," site of the huge aerial exhibition.

Building targets hasn't been the only job of the 817th and other engineering units assigned to Operation Combine III. They moved in with bulldozers and hand axes to clear land for barracks to house most of the men at Auxiliary Field No. 2 that are participating in the operation, plus 3000 students of the nation's top-drawer service schools.

Five of the Proving Ground's 10 auxiliary air fields were brought to life. Runways were extended for speed jet planes, lights rigged and water mains laid. Whole military villages were built. There are 27 engineer-built structures at Ninth Air Force Headquarters alone.

In the scrub pine of this bit of Florida, as in the days of the Roman legions, the engineers pave and maintain the way.

A Week at N.H.S.

BY PAT SHELTON

Hi kids! Here I am again with a column chock full of the interesting news and doing revolving around that great school of ours!!

Miss Maguire reports that after a week of tryouts, the cast for the annual Senior play has finally been chosen. The following members of the class of '49 shall soon be seen in the play, "The Campbell's Are Coming": Lucille Hamel, Elaine LaBranche, Agnes Blanchette, Pat Shelton, Richard Cilley, Bill Bouse, Lenny Waldron, Dick Philbrick and Bob Howcroft. The play is to be presented at the Newmarket Town Hall the first week in November.

Miss Maguire, coach of the play, has appointed Marilyn Abbott as her assistant. Other members of the class will help put the play on through such things as the business technicalities, advertising, stage manager, costumes, make up and ushers.

The Dramatic club held a meeting Monday at 1:45 in room 4. They decided to pay two dollars a year in dues. They also decided to subscribe to a popular theatrical magazine. This magazine contains one popular Broadway play a month. President of the Dramatic club, Carolyn Charest, expressed the hope of having the entire club attend at least one play put on in Boston during the year. She also urges the members who were absent from the meeting to come to the next one. She also said that any one in the upper three classes could still join the club if they wished.

First period on Monday caused a great stir among the freshmen and sophomores girls when the notice from the office was sent to each room. The try-outs for the Cheerleading Squad were to be held on Tuesday at 1:45 p. m. in the school auditorium. Two freshmen and one sophomore were to be picked. The judges at the tryouts were Mr. Clark, Mrs. Hibbard, Mrs. Raymond Miss Burnette and the veteran cheerleaders, Deborah Waugh, Joan St. Laurent, Eileen Ryan, Betty Wilson and Pat Shelton.

The tryouts were carried on for a great length of time because the competition was very keen. Finally the judges decided upon Adeline Smas and Cynthia Foster, both freshmen, and Olive Roper, sophomore. These girls were picked upon the qualifications of personal appearance, voice, rhythm, coordination, grasp of cheerleading, ability to follow directions, health, appearance as a cheerleader, confidence and willingness to cooperate. A meeting was held after the tryouts and the head cheerleader and her assistant were chosen. They are Pat Shelton and Deborah Waugh respectively.

The Senior class has been listening to records of Shakespeare's Macbeth. They say they are very interested and genuinely enjoy listening.

The Home Economic club has decided to put on a Hobo Dance October 29. President Lucille Hamel has assigned the various duties connected with giving a dance to members of the Home Ec Club.

This Friday, October 8, the annual Freshman Reception will be held. This night is devoted entirely to the freshmen and is sponsored by the Student Council.

The Senior class Portrait proofs arrived last week. The representative from the Warren-Kay Vantine studios was here Monday to take orders for the pictures.

The 1948-49 Social Calendar was issued by the Student Council this week. Some of the important social events of the year will be the Hobo Dance, Sophomore Hop, Cheerleader Rally and Dance, St. Patrick Day Dance, Operetta, Junior Prom and of course, the Senior Reception!

For the students going out for athletics at NHS this year, here are some of the more important rules and regulations put out by the State of New Hampshire.

No pupil who has failed to pass in three units of work during the previous basic ranking period shall represent his school in any interscholastic athletic contest. No pupil transferring from one school to another shall be eligible to participate in interscholastic athletics until he has attended this school nine months, unless his transfer is necessitated by a change of permanent address of parents or guardians to the area serviced by this school. No player shall be allowed to participate in any sport in which he has at any time received financial remuneration.

This is for you contest fiends if you haven't already read it posted on the school bulletin board! The Conde-Nast Publications are now announcing their 3rd Annual Art and Photography Contest. In this type of contest the contestants will be required to work out art and photography problems mailed to them. Deadline for enrollment is October 31, 1948. FAMILY REUNION HELD SUNDAY AT MRS. JOS. HAMEL'S

A family reunion was held last Sunday at the home of Mrs. Joseph Hamel, Exeter street. Combined with the reunion was a birthday celebration for Mr. Charles Dufour of Kalispell, Montana, son-in-law of Mrs. Hamel.

A turkey dinner was served by the hostess with all the fixings and a birthday cake was also served to the guests. Mr. Dufour received many nice gifts from the family and friends who had gathered for the enjoyable occasion.

Those who were at the dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Boisvert of Salmon Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Boisvert and sons, Robert and Richard of Exeter; Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Fontaine with their two children, Armand and Theresa of Railroad street; Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Boisvert and three children, Elaine, Doloris Ann and Edward of Spring street, all of Newmarket; Mr. and Mrs. Augustin Dufour and daughter, Marie; Mr. and Mrs. Florian Dufour and Mr. Ferdinand Parent, all of Lewiston, Me.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dufour of Kalispell, Montana; Mrs. Joseph Hamel, and Miss Jeanette Boisvert, and several others.

A total of 79,000 Naval Reservists participated in two week duty training cruises during 1947.

THE WORLD SERIES

Most every newspaper at this time of the year usually predicts or picks out the winner of the annual meeting of the pennant winners of the American and National Leagues.

Cleveland just edged out Boston in a playoff game for the American League title while Billy Southworth's Braves easily won the National League pennant with an injury-riddled team.

We predict Cleveland will win the Series in five games with the Braves winning one. The reason for this is: The Indians have a good pitching staff with Bob Lemon, Bob Feller and Gene Brearden. They also have a hard-hitting infield and outfield and have a leader in Lou Boudreau. The Braves are hustlers and have the right spirit of stormy competition but I don't think they will hold the Indians. As for the star of the series I'll pick Ken Keltner.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR MR. RODMAN

Mrs. Avis St. Hilaire and two children, Virginia and Donet, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Walter Preston and Jerry and Miss Claire Rodman visited Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rodman of South Sutton.

It was Mr. Rodman's birthday. He had a fine birthday cake and other refreshments and each one presented him with a gift.

STORK SHOWER GIVEN MRS. RENEE GERVAIS

Mrs. Renee Gervais of Exeter was given a stork shower by her three aunts, Mrs. Eva Latour, Mrs. Humidor Latour and Mrs. Helorie Chantry. The shower was held at the home of Mrs. Chantry, 2 Spring street. Mrs. Eva Latour decorated the living room in pink and white and Mrs. Humidor Latour covered a large box with pink and white roses to hold the many presents, given in honor of the coming little one.

A delicious lunch was served including a large cake.

Dancing was enjoyed until twelve o'clock and everyone had a most enjoyable time.

Mr. Preston suffered the attack Saturday morning while working in his office in the Michael block in North Main street shortly after 11 a. m.

SHS Enrollment Same As Last Year

The enrollment at Spaulding High school remains at about the same point as last year. The distribution of the classes is as follows:

Class	Boys	Girls	Total
7	79	63	142
8	75	83	158
	154	146	300
9	94	74	168
10	83	83	166
11	72	80	152
12	80	65	145
	329	302	631
	483	448	931

For purposes of athletic eligibility the total senior high school enrollment of boys is the criterion. We are classed as an "A" school for basketball because we have over 165 boys.

One of the important changes allows a boy to play after 12 weeks instead of 18 weeks if he was not passing his previous semester's work with three credit. Thus a boy who failed to pass with three credits in June, could after 12 weeks in the Fall, if passing three or more units, be eligible for all sports.

It is hoped that this project will help to rebuild the Spaulding high school band.

Mr. Roger Snow of the UNH is the present band instructor and will gladly welcome any interested members.

Grierson

The trial of Mrs. Leah W. Grierson, charged with first degree manslaughter in the paring knife slaying of Charles A. Peabody of Dover, on May 23, 1948, opened Monday morning in Strafford County Superior Court in Dover, with Justice John R. Goodnow presiding.

Most of the morning session was taken up with the drawing of the jury. Those drawn for jury duty were: Harold M. Taylor of Farmington, foreman; Lester Hurd of Rochester, George Bickford of New Durham, Marcel Gagnon of Somersworth, Fred E. Huckins of Strafford, Ernest H. Jenness of Dover, Alfred Joel of Somersworth, Eugene Berube of Rollinsford, Roy Braudis of Rochester, Lyle Smith of Barrington, Evangelos Janetos of Rollinsford and George Levesque of Somersworth.

Because the trial is expected to be lengthy, Henry E. Jones of Durham, was chosen to serve as an alternate juror.

Mrs. Grierson entered the court room with her former husband, Harry W. Grierson, and her attorney William H. Sleeper of Exeter. The defendant entered a plea of "not guilty" in answer to the charge of first degree manslaughter, which was read by Clerk of Court Richard H. Keefe.

The jurors were taken to Rochester for a view of the scene of the alleged crime, following opening remarks by County Solicitor Frank W. Peyser.

The jury also visited the Dover Moose club, where the prosecution claims the defendant and the victim were drinking earlier in the evening on May 23.

Outlines State's Case

During the afternoon session Peyser completely outlined the state's case. The state claims that Peabody's death was the result of a three-inch knife wound inflicted by Mrs. Grierson, following what the state's attorney termed a "quarrel." Attorney Peyser related how Patrolman Charles Levesque went to Mrs. Grierson's home at 15 1/2 Brock street, in response to a telephone call from the defendant. He said Mrs. Grierson met the patrolman on the porch of her home with the cry, "Charlie, Charlie, I've killed him."

Attorney Peyser, in relating his version of the happenings leading up to the slaying, said that Mrs. Grierson had admitted that Peabody slapped her and swore at her. Willis E. Littlefield, of Dover, an architect, was the state's first witness.

He explained drawings he made of the physical properties of the Grierson home. The examination of Littlefield by Atty. Peyser and defense attorney Sleeper took most of the afternoon.

Most of the Tuesday morning session was spent with Patrolman Charles Levesque, member of the Rochester police force, who answered the call from Mrs. Grierson on the fatal night and arrived at the Grierson home shortly after the slaying.

Patrolman Levesque said Mrs.

Grierson was in a nearly hysterical condition when he arrived and greeted him on the porch with the cry, "Charlie, Charlie, I've killed him." He said the defendant's condition continued to be upset for sometime and as he tried to question her, she kept repeating, "I loved him, and I killed him."

Under direct examination, Patrolman Levesque testified that when he asked her, "What did you hit him with?" Mrs. Grierson pointed at the broken knife handle on the kitchen table.

Later, under cross examination by Defense Atty. William H. Sleeper, Levesque admitted that she did not mention the knife specifically, but merely pointed. Levesque also testified that during the first phase of the police investigation, Mrs. Grierson "told me that he (Peabody) picked up the knife and came after me, shouting threats." The patrolman said the defendant showed him "cuts in the palm of her hand, and on her ring finger at this stage of the inquiry."

During the afternoon session, medical referee Forrest L. Keay took the stand to state that the death of Charles A. Peabody was caused by a stab wound between the third and fourth ribs which penetrated the heart.

Dr. Keay described the four stab wounds which he discovered on the victim, and he also identified what the state claims is the death weapon, as a broken paring knife found in the kitchen of Mrs. Grierson's home. He went on to say that this knife could have caused all of the wounds.

Sam Seavey, reporter and photographer, left the press table to take the witness stand to testify and identify pictures taken by him in the home, at the request of police.

Mrs. Grierson wore the same clothes that she wore on the first day of the trial and was seated with her attorney.

The trial resumed at 10 o'clock this morning.

Check List Session Next Wednesday

The Supervisors of the Check List will be in session at the City Hall, Wednesday October 13 and Saturday, Oct. 23, from 1 to 5 and 7 to 9 p. m. for the correction of the check list to issue, transfer cards and to add new voters who have reached the age of 21. All women voters who have changed their names through marriage or otherwise and all voters who have moved from one ward to another ward in the city prior to May 1, are requested to appear and notify the Supervisors of the Check List as to their present address. Any voters who have resided in one ward over six months should be transferred from the ward from which he has previously voted, to the ward in which he resides at the present time.

Self-denial is practical, and is not only polite to all but is pleasant to those who practice it.

Thirty-four openings for workers were on file at the local SES office at the end of September, Mr. McConnell concluded. These openings are principally in shoe shops, garages, homes, box shops and offices, and call largely for campers, stitchers, auto mechanics, autobodymen, office workers, house keepers, French cord stitchers, French cord turners, cutters, lumber handlers and finish carpenters.

MANY UNNAMED IN OLD VITAL RECORDS

Back in 1905 a project was undertaken which involved copying all the old vital records recorded in the towns and cities in the state so that, in so far as was possible, copies of all vital records filed throughout the state would be in one central file in the state office.

Just the other day, we unearthed in our vital statistics vault a large package of records which pertained to unnamed persons. We found in this group of records, copies of birth, marriage and death records, which did not contain an adequate surname so that the records could be filed alphabetically in their proper place. In a large majority of cases, the names on the original records apparently could not be read. There were other reports which pertained to persons who were never identified and in other cases, the local records perhaps only mentioned an event that occurred in the town but the data was so brief that about the only purpose for the record was to report the event.

For example, sometime in 1778 in Portsmouth we learned that "Cato, a servant of Richard Billings" married "Katherine, a servant of Joshua Wentworth, Esq." In 1803 in New Ipswich a record shows that "Caesar" married "Rosanna." Again down in Portsmouth in 1785, "Quam (a negro man)" married "Rebecca (a negro woman)" and "Juba" married "Venus." In the town of Wilton in 1788, "Pomp" married "Margaret" both of whom were stated to be African residents. Then, "Newport (a free negro man)" married "Violet (a free woman)" in 1778 in Portsmouth.

From many of the death records, we can even picture some scenes of New Hampshire's early days. In 1731, it was reported from Hinsdale that an individual was killed by the Indians. "Old Caesar" was drowned in Orford, in 1796. "Diana" a mulatto woman, died in Marlboro in 1873, her age is given as unknown but, the report shows that "she was supposed to be very great." "Lucy" a woman of "color" was reported to have died in Newington in 1803. A large number of old records from Keene report the deaths of "An Irish Child"

Miss Jane Cowl, who will play the courageous teacher in the Episcopal Church's production of The Corn is Green, in the radio series GREAT SCENES FROM GREAT PLAYS, Friday, October 8, at 8 P. M., EST, on all Mutual stations. The play teaches the importance of the teaching profession, in a tense drama, and at the end of the play there is a short message from the Church to the listener.

or "An Irishman" who died at the time of the land slide in 1847. One record from Keene reports the death of "a woman at the ten pin alley" in 1863. "Willie" and "Maggie" both died in Nashua in 1866 of cholera. "Mary, the Indian" died at the Coos County Alms House in 1892 of a "hip joint disease."

It seems surprising the number of death records reported of unknown persons who were killed by trains and drowned and the large number of bodies of infants which were found in rivers, dumps and even in cemeteries.

From a birth record we hear that "Poll" was born in 1778 to "Caesar" who formerly belonged to Samuel Hart of Portsmouth and "Peg" who formerly belonged to John Sherburne, Esq. of Portsmouth. In the majority of cases however, no names at all appear on the birth records which are held in our "unknown" file. Unfortunately, one, two or several of these records might have proved invaluable to the individuals concerned who have possibly been unable to establish birth records if only the records had been properly filed at the time of the event.

GOD IN THE CITY

THE MOST tragic mistake man can make is to forget his God. And no place is God more easily forgotten than in the great city. There man is confronted by humanity on every hand. Everything that he sees is man-made. Whatever he hears, speaks of man. That which arouses his admiration has come from the mind and hand of man. So also that which provokes his disgust. In the city there is no escape from man, from the things he has done and made. The city's future, as well as its past, is all wrapped up in man. Its hopes and desires are in man, its hopes and desires are in man, its aspirations earth-bound.

But where is God?

Hurrying shoppers fill the sidewalks and impatient automobiles crowd the streets. Can God be in the minds of these people? The weary clerk, the preoccupied office workers—can they be occupied with thoughts of God? Business men on every level, in commerce and industry, intent on making money eager to achieve success—how can God be fitted into their lives?

The surprising thing is that there are in the great cities so many men and women in every walk of life who never for a day forgot their God. In spite of the spirit of the city they remember their God. They talk with Him and walk with Him. Their homes are a refuge where God's Word and prayer refresh the soul from day to day. Their churches raising their steeples in every section of the city, are a testimony to the presence of God, even where man, at first glance, would appear to be master of all.

Because God is there and works His blessing in and through them, the Christian home and the Christian church becomes the sources of spiritual and moral strength of great cities.
