Lee burned body was suicide Nov. 5, 1991

By ANN M. STIFTER
Democrat Staff Writer

LEE — The man whose body was discovered in a wooded area along Jenkins Road Saturday died after burning and stabbing himself, according to officials.

An autopsy report indicated that Steven Allen, 31, of 50 Maplecreek, Newmarket, died from a combination of smoke inhalation, body burns and a self-inflicted stab wound to his abdomen, according to Assistant Attorney General Mark Zuckerman.

Allen's badly burned body was discovered by a hunter Saturday morning in a densely wooded area off of Jenkins Road, Zuckerman said.

Although initially labeling the incident a suspicious death, Zuckerman said it had been deemed a suicide since the manner of death was consistent with a suicide note Allen had mailed to his home, Zuckerman said.

Allen was last seen Oct. 28 at his home, and relatives received the note Oct. 30, Zuckerman said.

Newmarket police were made aware of the note Oct. 30 and filed a missing person's report to law enforcement agencies, he said.

An autopsy report released by state Chief Medical Examiner Roger Fossum said Allen probably died Oct. 29.

Allen's body was found in a privately owned wooded area less than a half mile from the roadway.

Throughout the day Saturday, officials from the State Police, including the crime scene unit, Lee police, and members of the Fire Marshal's Office and the state Fish and Game Department were at the scene.

William Allen

WELLS, Maine — William F. Allen, 70, of Wells, and formerly of Newmarket, N.H., died Sept. 12, 2008, at Hyder Family Hospice House in Dover, N.H.

WILLIAM ALLEN

Born Mar. 30, 1938, in Portland, he was the son of Frank and Madeline (DeRoche) Allen. He lived in Newmarket for 30 years before moving to Wells in 1998. Since 2001, he has wintered in Naples, Fla.

As a young man, Bill served as an apprentice mason working with his father. Together they built a retaining wall on the family property, and Bill's passion for stonework and construction was ignited. He joined the International Union of Bricklayers and Allied Craftworkers and then spent a lifetime creating functional works of art with his hands.

Many years ago, while visiting family in California, someone put a railroad engineer's cap on Bill's head and created a legend. In the decades since, Bill wore his trademark cap as he left his legacy of fine craftsmanship throughout New England. He wore it while laying the marble in the Warren B. Rudman U.S. Courthouse in Concord, N.H., while creating the stonework for Foxwoods Casino, and while building or repairing countless fireplaces and stonewalls in the Seacoast region.

His wife of 50 years, Linda (Hilton) Allen, replaced the caps as they became weathered and worn from his constant exposure to the elements. After he retired, he focused on creating custom kitchen cabinets. He also kept his hands in carpentry by helping his son build a house and building himself and Linda a home in Wells. He was a constant presence in the lives of his children and grandchildren as he helped their families build additions, make renovations or give general advice about his many trades.

In 2001, he and Linda began wintering in Naples, Fla. Never one to sit still, Bill quickly became the neighborhood craftsman. When in New England, in the 70s Bill took solitary day trips on his motorcycle, still wearing his cap, or more recently, sat in his fishing boat in Wells Harbor, retreating to fish.

Bill's passion for expressing himself through his hands is shared by his children, who carry on his tradition of fine craftsmanship in their vocations in landscape design, carpentry, fine art and machinery. His grandson, Tyler Allen, is now the fourth generation of stone masons in the family.

He is survived by his wife of 50 years, Linda (Hilton) Allen; five children, Mark W. Allen and his companion, Liz Martin, of Richmond, N.H., Jeffrey S. Allen of Manchester, Todd F. Allen and his wife, Tracey, of Nottingham, Ann M. Hartman and her husband, Michael, of Amherst, N.H., Lindy C. Allen and her partner, Claire Betz, of Freeport; seven grandchildren and one great-grandson; three sisters, Sandra Allen of Westbrook, Mary T. Allen of Hayward, Calif., Deborah Cormier of South Windsor, Conn., along with four nieces and one nephew. Bill is predeceased by his son, Steven T. Allen, brother, Clarence Allen and sister, Christine Willis.

A Memorial visitation will be held at the Kent & Pelczar Funeral Home, 77 Exeter St., Newmarket, N.H., on Wednesday, Sept. 17, from 4 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. At 6:30 p.m., there will be a brief service to celebrate Bill's life and share memories.

Bruce Atherton

NEWMARKET — Bruce Allen Atherton Sr. died on Saturday, March 1, 2008. He was 73.

Born Aug. 22, 1934, he was the second son of Forest "Hoddy" Atherton and Marjorie (Smith) Atherton of Newmarket. A gifted cabinet maker and craftsman, Bruce displayed his talent early, building exquisite wooden model airplanes, boats and racecars. He apprenticed for a boat builder in his early teens, graduated at the top of his class at Dover Trade school and was recruited by Lawrence Towne, General Contractors, a small, but, prestigious builder. Bruce's cabinet making talent was sought after by discerning clients, including The Woodman Institute in Dover, N.H., where the polar bear display among many others were crafted by him.

A lifelong resident of Newmarket, Bruce left only when called upon by Uncle Sam. A veteran serving honorably twice in the U.S. Army, he was a trophy winning marksman and operated a tank in West Germany. Like his father and grandfather before him, Bruce loved all things Great Bay, boating, water skiing, fishing, water fowling and watching over the bay.

An avid bird watcher in retirement, Bruce was often consulted by the Audubon Society to confirm sightings of unusual avian visitors. A selfless individual and true gentleman, Bruce will be missed by his many friends, his children and grandchildren.

Predeceased by his wife, Jeanne M. Atherton, Bruce is survived by his son, Bruce A Atherton Jr. and daughter-in-law, Vayia K. Atherton of Milton, N.H.; his daughters, Mary Jane Atherton of Virginia Beach, Va., and Jacqueline A. Dubbs of Newmarket; and two grandchildren, Kevin Richard Dubbs and Laura Ann Dubbs, also of Newmarket.

There will be no funeral services or calling hours at the request of Bruce A. Atherton Sr.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that you remember Bruce in your thoughts and prayers.
