Twardus Not Running

For the first time since 1959 John Twardus, Democrat, Newmarket, will not seek reelection to the general court.

Twardus, one of Newmarket's

John Twardus

most active citizens, decided not to run for reelection at age 78 because of his health.

The former selectman wanted to thank Newmarket residents for the support they showed him over the past 40 years.

Locally, Twardus also served as overseer of the poor, and as a member of the planning board.

He worked for the federal government for 25 years, and the state five years.

The WWI veteran attended the Bonus March with Sergeant Watters of Portland, Ore. A former state commander of the sons of the American Legion, and life member of the American Legion Robert G. Durgin Post, Twardus plans to stay active on both the state and local level.

Twardus played baseball with Babe Ruth in 1915 and petitioned for the WWI charter in 1960.

MISS FLORA TREADWELL

LOCAL CITIZEN, IS DEAD;

Miss Flora G. Treadwell of Maple avenue, one of Newmarket's foremost citizens, died Wednesday evening, March 22, at a hotel in Boston where she was attending a flower show. Her death became known when a friend Miss Marion Sawyer, formerly of Manchester, called to have dinner with her and when she failed to appear, went to her room. The cause of death is believed to be a heart attack.

Miss Treadwell was born in Newmarket on June 24, 1865, the daughter of Napoleon B. and Fidelity (Haines) Treadwell. Her father was a sea captain at one time, and the large tulip tree that grows in front of her home was brought from India and planted there by him.

Miss Treadwell was a graduate of the Emerson School of Oratory in Boston and taught dramatics and physical education at the Girls' High school in Brooklyn, N. Y., for 30 years. She returned to Newmarket after retiring in 1928.

She was a member of the Exeter Woman's Club, the Community Guild, and an honorary member of the Newmarket Woman's club. Recently, when Channing W. Sewall and family lost their home and four children by fire, she was
